Hoover Offers Food Plan; Wickard's Fate at Stake

FDR Indicates He Plans Shake-Up In Farm Set-Up

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Farm organization leaders today studied a proposal by President Roosevelt for a thorough shake-up of the farm and food program administrations.

The future status of Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard is at stake. The farm leaders are expected to support him personally, but to recommend against some of his policies.

Mr. Roosevelt has expressed concern over the food situation. His personal intervention indicates that he considers it one of the most critical of the home front problems.

The first direct indication that Mr. Roosevelt intends to do something soon came from farm organization leaders who met with him yesterday at his request. Afterward they disclosed that he "put the cards on the table," and made some "definite suggestions" on which he asked them to report as soon as possible.

The White House conferees yesterday included Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau federation; Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange; James Patton, president of the National Farmers' union and Ezra Benson of the National Council of Farmer Co-operatives.

There are differences of opinion among the farm organization leaders concerning Wickard, but as a group they are likely to urge that he be retained, at least as secretary of agriculture to direct the farm production program. There has been some discussion recently among administration officials concerning the possibility of creating a food administration separate from the agriculture department, where it was placed last December by Mr. Roosevelt.

Friends of Wickard say he has been balked in his efforts to deal with the three most important problems of food production — manpower, machinery and price policies. He has had the responsibility without powers to make final decisions.

The dispute—if there was an open dispute—was carried to President Roosevelt, it was learned, thus precipitating his reported proposal for important changes in farm program administration and policies.

Mid-West Meeting Asks Farming Be Held 'Essential'.

(By International News Service)

DES MOINES, Ia. — Agricultural America had under consideration today eight recommendations by former President Herbert Hoover which, he said, would forestall an impending critical food shortage.

Hoover, who was food administrator during World war I, submitted his proposals last night at the final session of the midwest governors' manpower and farm planning conference in Des Moines which was attended by 77 farm experts, including eight governors, from the nation's "bread basket" states.

States represented at the conference either by governors or by delegates were Ohio, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Wisconsin.

After hearing Hoover's address, which was broadcast throughout the nation, the delegates adopted a six-point program demanding recognition of agriculture as an essential industry for selective service priority purposes and agreed to press for action in congress.

Hoover's eight recommendations were:

1. Agriculture must rank with munitions in the plan for victory.
2. Adequate manpower and farm machinery must be made available to agriculture immediately.
3. Current divided and competitive authorities over food in Washington should be consolidated under the secretary of agriculture.
4. Farm and food problems must be more largely decentralized to the states, which contributed greatly to win the food battle in World war 1.
5. The "ancient and inefficient" method of price control now in use must be replaced by a simpler and more effective protection to both farmers and housewives. Prices to farmers should be increased to cover their costs and labor.
6. Army officials should consider deferring the draft of farm youths during 1943.
7. Farm boys now in the armed services who are not overseas should be furloughed during planting and harvesting seasons.
8. The government should give assurance to farmers that help for harvesting will be available if they plant maximum acreage in answer to Washington's appeal for increased food production.

The former president declared that symptoms of the same degenerative forces in agriculture

Ashlander Gets Hero's Medal

Gunnery Sergeant Jerry W. Emminger, 23, former Ashland foundry worker, is shown here being decorated with the Soldier's Medal for his having heroically dragged a dive-bomber pilot from the burning wreckage of their plane at Waycross, Ga., last November. The award was made at Sheppard field, Texas, by Lieut. Col. B. G. Scott. Despite a fractured pelvis suffered in a parachute jump, Emminger ignored his own intense pain to rush amid exploding ammunition to carry the flight officer's body from the flames. He did not know the officer was dead. Sgt. Emminger is studying aerial engineering and will rejoin his 384th Bombardment squadron at Waycross after training.

TOPS NATION IN WAR FUND DRIVE

Richland Red Cross, With $38,442 Reported, Ahead of National Pace.

More than $10,000 past the halfway mark today, the Richland County Red Cross is advancing more rapidly in its war fund drive than the national drive as a whole.

With reports from eight leading industries yet to come in, the total amount raised to date is $38,442 toward the goal of $59,000. The industrial reports are expected to swell the total to within easy reach of the goal.

Ward solicitors have made a fairly complete report of their contacts in the city but as yet reports from the county and from Shelby are incomplete. Both of these are expected to be over their goals.

Less than reaching the halfway mark, the nation as a whole has pledged $50,000,000 of $125,000,000 sought in the drive, Red Cross officials revealed last night at the rally held in Madison Square Garden.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Princess Martha of Norway were among those who participated in HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The army has rejected Mickey Rooney after physical examination, and the usually exuberant 21-year-old screen star says he isn't happy about it.

The rejection was disclosed last night by Lt. Col. Agard H. Bailey, commanding the Los Angeles induction center, who said Rooney had been referred to the center by draft officials and had undergone a thorough check-up.

Col. Bailey did not reveal specific physical reasons for Rooney's rejection, but the actor's mother, Mrs. Nell Pankey, said two weeks ago Mickey had high blood pressure and a flutter in his heart.

ESCAPE DEATH

Loudonville Men Injured as Engine Strikes Auto.

LOUDONVILLE — Two employers of the Flxible company narrowly escaped death this morning when their automobile was demolished in the second grade crossing accident here within the past month. Three Perrysville women, two of them Flxible employes, were killed in a similar accident Feb. 18.

Injured today were Herbert Hamm, 63, and Edward Gunckle, 68, both of Loudonville. Hamm received back injuries and multiple lacerations while Gunckle, 68, suffered head, leg and rib injuries. Treated in the office of a Loudonville physician, the men were then removed to their homes.

Witnesses said the car in which the two rode waited at the Market street crossing until a freight train passed then drove onto the tracks almost directly into the path of a pusher engine which was following the freight.

U. S. Faces Life Of Torture If Nazis Win War, Speaker Says

If Germany should win this war, your life under the Nazis would be one of physical and mental torture, your children would be persuaded to turn against you, there would be wholesale killings on the streets and starvation would not be uncommon.

This was the picture James W. Brown, former Y. M. C. A. representative in Rumania left with his audience of more than 200 last night when he gave an address on "Life Under the Nazis" at Grace Episcopal church.

Life here, Brown said, would be the same as it is in Rumania where he was stationed for 21 years and was caught under the Nazi yoke, held a prisoner and tortured by the Gestapo which wrongfully accused him of engaging in espionage.

Brown was stationed in Bucharest when the Germans stormed into Rumania.

"The mass murders and torture inflicted upon the people of Rumania is a black mark in modern history," he said. "Any person offering resistance to the Germans was shot down without trial. The Nazis looted homes and stores,

Brown Plans To Put Businessmen In Key OPA Jobs

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Price Administrator Prentiss Brown disclosed last night that he is planning a general reorganization of OPA to place businessmen instead of lawyers in key positions, and to invest more authority in local ration boards.

Brown said at a press conference that a "prominent Chicago merchandising leader" would be invited to become the new general manager, replacing John E. Hamm, senior deputy administrator and chief aide of former Price Administrator Leon Henderson. Hamm, Brown said, is leaving the OPA.

He said he wanted "more men of experience in the merchandising field who will be able to run OPA as a large and successful business undertaking."

Brown said OPA had suffered from adverse, although partially

RULES SENIORS IN SERVICE TO GET DIPLOMAS

School Board Says Those Who Have Passing Grades Will Receive 'Sheepskins.'

REJECTS STATE PLAN

Votes Against Basic Training Requirement as Suggested By State Department.

Mansfield high school seniors who enlist or are inducted into the armed forces during their final semester in school will receive their diplomas anyway if they have made passing grades in all their subjects to the time of their entrance into service.

That was the requirement set up by the Mansfield board of education last night. A state department of education recommendation that diplomas be withheld until the youthful soldier, sailor or marine, has submitted a statement from his superior officer showing he has satisfactorily completed his 13 weeks basic training was voted down by the board members.

"That would be asking too much of the boy," said Harold A. Bruce, vice president of the board, who added that "I don't think a boy in service far from home would be thinking much about his high school diploma after 13 weeks of military training."

It was pointed out by Supt. W. L. Miller that virtually all of the 18-year-old seniors who will be graduated in June have been granted deferment by their draft boards. The few who have entered the armed forces enlisted or preferred to leave school, he said.

In setting up the provisions for graduation, the board also approved a plan whereby the senior who ranks in the upper fourth of his class would be recommended for college at the close of his first semester in high school or during the final semester if he wants to take advantage of the accelerated war-time training programs offered by colleges.

The board's resolution stated fruther that "In addition to being in the upper fourth of his class, the senior seeking college entrance should possess the additional achievement of intellectual ability and the social maturity essential for college entrance."

High school seniors past 18 who are called for examinations by the draft boards may obtain deferment to finish their schooling if they submit their request in writing to the board before they receive their induction orders.

MEAL CUT DUE

Order Planned to Limit Size of Restaurant Servings.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The agriculture department is drafting an order that will limit the size of meals served by restaurants so that "diners-out" will get no more food than those who eat at home.

Under the new plan, restaurant customers would not be required to surrender ration coupons for meat, butter, canned foods, sugar, coffee, and other rationed foods, but the size of meals served would be limited.

All establishments would be told that they could serve only a certain number of ounces of meat with each meal. The number of vegetables probably would be limited to two or, if a salad were served, to one. Menus would give diners a choice of soup, cocktail or desert—not all three, and a choice of milk or coffee—not both.

Boost Pace to Ease Pressure Near Kharkov

Russians Take More Towns West Of Vyazma, Seize Important Railway Station 80 Miles From Bryansk; Loss Of Kharkov Admitted.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army is continuing to smash westward toward Smolensk, the German key base of the central front, and also appeared today to have established a strong line east of Kharkov after announcing the loss of the Ukraine city recaptured only Feb. 16.

Four spearheads are aimed at Smolensk from an arc swinging northwestward from Vyazma and one of the newest and most spectacular successes was that reported by a column surging forward from Kholm-Zhirkovsky, west of the upper Dnieper river.

The Russian columns also offered a threat to another German base, Bryansk, with some troops fighting stiff battles south of Vyazma to capture the railway station of Milyatinsky-Zavod, on the Vyazma-Bryansk railway 80 miles north of Bryansk. This is the closest point the Red army has approached that vital stronghold which with Orel serves as a turning point between the southern and central fronts.

The railway station of Miliatino, on the same line, but more to the north, also was captured by Soviet troops, fighting knee deep in snow.

The advance from Kholm-Zhirkovsky represented the first time in any Russian offensive since the beginning of the war that the Soviets had reached and recrossed the Dnieper river, the great waterway of western Russia.

With the vital Smolensk bastion imperilled by the approach of four Russian columns—the nearest reported only 50 to 60 miles away—it appeared likely the German high command soon would have to shift some of its reserves from the Kharkov battle zone to the north.

There was no official Soviet explanation for evacuating Kharkov but recent Russian communiques and reports had stressed continued heavy German tank and infantry attacks with fresh reserves launched against the city.

A writer in Red Star today declared "Hitler's fresh divisions took Kharkov—but he did not win the battle."

Another Red Star reporter asserted all Hitler got in the capture of Kharkov was the bodies of Germans.

The withdrawal from Kharkov was acknowledged in the Soviet midnight communique last night in these words:

"On March 15, our troops after several days' fighting evacuated the town of Kharkov under orders of the Soviet command."

Today's noon communique did not mention Kharkov specifically but spoke of continuing battles and punishing losses inflicted on the German attackers "in the area of the middle course of the northern Donets river."

The Germans continued their tank attacks in this sector, the war bulletin said, and at least one place they tried another

BOMBED: Young Frenchmen In Hills Attacked By Nazi Planes

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—French youths who took to the Alpine foothills near the Swiss border to wage guerrilla warfare against being sent to Germany in a forced labor draft were reported today being bombed by German planes after rejecting an ultimatum to surrender to a force of 1,000 French modile guards. It was believed here German occupation troops would go in after them, if they have not already done so.

As many as 7,000 were said to be in hiding near Thonon, in the Haute Savoie below Lake Geneva, on the French border with Switzerland. Others were hidden in mountain fastinesses down through the Aix-Les-Bains region in the Mont Blanc territory of the Savoie.

The London Daily Herald said "foreign planes, presumably Allied, have been dropping food, automatic rifles and grenades to the partisans" and then reported the German bombing raids on the fugitives.

British circles saw in the insurrection a clear sign that France was ready to play a part in any invasion, but they said they hoped the resistance was organized well enough to hide the fugitives until the hour struck for a general uprising.

One source estimated 90 per cent of the young men of the region who had been ordered to go to Germany to work in war factories had fled into the wild mountainous country, which has been occupied up until now by Italian forces only.

The Algiers radio was heard in a broadcast addressed to the French partisans declaring "do not fear; it will not be long now; the hour of liberation is at hand."

Tass, Soviet news agency, in a Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet radio monitor, said Germany was speeding up evacuation of civilians from a large portion of the coast of France, with the civilians being marched inland under armed escort, as if they were prisoners of war.

ATTACKS: Yanks Blast Enemy Convoy; Japs Smash At Darwin

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — Hard on the heels of news that the Japanese were massing men and ships on their island base northwest of Australia, Allied airmen lashed out suddenly in that area yesterday and blasted two troop-laden transports in a three-ship convoy bound for Dobo, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The threat implied in the new Japanese concentrations was driven home by the greatest burst of enemy aerial activity in this theater in months—a 49-plane assault on Darwin, Australia, and a 15-plane raid on Oro bay, New Guinea.

In the attack on the convoy off enemy-occupied Dobo, in the Aroe islands about 500 miles north of Darwin, direct hits were scored on two of the ships by Allied bombers which roared in at masthead height, and several near hits were scored in the third vessel, the Allied communique said.

Long-range fighters which accompanied the bombers raked the transports from stem to stern with cannon and machine-gun fire, causing heavy casualties to troops packed on the decks, the bulletin added.

The Japanese smash at Darwin, key Allied base on the northwest tip of Australia, met stiff resistance from Spitfire fighters.

The Allies announced they had shot two bombers and 12 fighters out of action and "so seriously damaged an additional three fighters and two bombers they had

Safety First In Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n)

Although "damping off" can be prevented, there are no known means of saving plants afflicted with the disease. Excessive moisture, crowded plants, lack of air circulation, high humidity, and lack of sunlight are all factors which help to make this disease successful among plants destined this year for Victory gardens.

Because America needs millions of Victory gardens this year every "safety first" measure to protect seedling plants should be taken. The accompanying Garden-Graph illustrates the problem and what can be done about it.

Figure 1 shows a flat of healthy seedlings which have escaped "damping off" because soils, seeds and container itself were sterilzed.

Figure 3 shows how one can check the spread of "damping off" to the entire flat by immediately digging out the afflicted plants as illustrated, including the soil surrounding them. Following the removal of the sick plants and the soil they grew in the entire flat should be top-dressed with a thin layer of sand or powdered sulphur. Transplanting of the unaffected seedling plants is also a good "safety first measure."

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

Milner's urge to see the inside of the Veritzen living room must have been strong, I thought, or he never would have accepted that chilling but courteous invitation from the owner of the Lansfield.

"Thank you," he said. "I will just step inside to tell you my errand, but I must not stay. I am in a tremendous hurry."

"Then we will not keep you," his employer told him silkily, as Milner's lips clamped tightly together and the lines around his mouth showed how deep was his fury at the covert insult he dared not resent.

"It is simply this,' 'he said, with an air of urgent haste; "I have received news which will compel me to go out of the city for a few hours. I may be back in the early morning, but certainly no later than afternoon, and of course I wished to explain this to you personally. I trust my absence will not inconvenience you in any way."

Milner Taken Down a Peg.

Philip Veritzen gave him a stare that was almost insolent.

"My dear fellow," he drawled, "how could your absence inconvenience me? Go when you like, and stay as long as you like."

If he had added, "and if you never come back, that will be all right with me too," he could not have defined Milner's rating with him more clearly, and I think the great impresario never came closer to being knocked down. But with an effort which must have taxed his power of restraint, Milner gave a poised, unhurried answer.

"Thank you," he said. "You are most gracious." Then he looked toward Olga.

"I trust all the ararngements are satisfactory, Madame Veritzen," he said.

Olga, taking her cue from Philip, looked at him with an air of regal condescension which she rarely uses, and then only to deal with insolence.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Milner, thank you," she said. "Everything is very nice."

Then Philip spoke, this time with an air of perfunctory explanation.

"Our party is not yet complete," Philip said. "My son and daughter-in-law have not yet arrived, and I have just heard that our guest of honor will be detained a little while."

When Philip had closed the door on Milner and put up the night chain, he came back with anger-filled eyes.

Praised by Spencer.

"That fawning cur," he said. "I had all I could do to keep from knocking him down."

"I fancy you were brothers under your skins in that desire," my father said dryly. "But you were magnificent, Philip. You took just the right tone with him. He will have food for worried thought over your attitude."

I rose and came toward them, repressing a smile with difficulty.

"You said your guest of honor would be detained," I said demurely. "Is it your pleasure to have him let out of the detention pen?" And to give Olga an explanation of the locked door I added "I told him to lock the door after me."

TWO-PURPOSE DOUBLES

Some smart penalty doubles have more than the single purpose of increasing the value of each trick by which you beat the declarer. In certain cases, one of them can cause your partner to select a different lead from the one he would otherwise have chosen. By doing so, your side may set the contract by one or more additional tricks. Such a double should never be tried unless you have a smart partner opposite you, who will grasp the idea and follow through to sucess with it.

This deal was a splendid example of the kind of keen bridge sometimes found in social rubber games. It came in the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wade, in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and made victims of another adroit pair, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gould, keen competitors and strong bidders.

This time they reached out so that, even without the double from Mrs. Wade, Mr. Gould could have taken only eight tricks and would have been down one. The lead would have been the spade 10, the K winning, and seven more tricks could have been run. With the double, however, they were set three tricks, for a score of 800, or a clear gain of 700 because of the double.

Phil Wade reasoned that his wife's double could not be based on anything except a winning diamond honor, since she sat over the diamond bid of the dummy. So because of the double he led the diamond 8. Seeing that he couldn't possibly get nine tricks unless the diamond finesse would work, Mr. Gould tried it. The K, of course, won, the spade J came back, trapping the K, and the six tricks in that suit gave the defenders the first seven taken.

Rice Roast In Day's Menu For Economy

By BETSY NEWMAN

WE COOKS and housewives have to keep our eyes open every minute to keep our grocery bills down. If we use eggs in our main dish we have to plan a dessert that has no eggs in it, and so on down the whole list of important foods. We can eke out our butter ration with vitaminized margarine and we can use lard and vegetable shortenings in baking.

* * *

Today's Menu
Meatless Rice Roast
Spinach
Raw Vegetable Salad
Apple Sauce Cake
Hot Drink

Apple Sauce Cake

- 1½ c strained, unsweetened apple sauce
- 1 c. brown sugar
- ½ c. melted shortening
- 1 c. chopped raisins
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- 2 tsps. soda
- 2 c. flour

Mix melted shortening with sugar, add apple sauce. Sift flour with soda and spice, sifting a little over the raisins. Or dissolve soda in a little cold water. Add to first mixture, then add raisins and blend. Bake 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until done.

* * *

Meatless Rice Roast

- 2 c. cooked white or brown rice
- 2 c. ground whole wheat toast
- 1 c. ground nuts (pecans or peanuts
- 2 tbsps. ground onion
- 4 tbsps. chopped pimiento
- 2 c. canned tomatoes
- 2 tbsps. ground green pepper
- ¼ tsp. sage
- 1 tsp. salt
- 4 beaten eggs

Mix ingredients thoroughly, form into a loaf and bake for 1 hour in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve hot with following sauce:

- 1½ tbsp. fat
- 1 tbsp. ground onion
- 3 tbsps. flour
- 1 c. tomato juice

Melt fat, add onion, and cook gently for a few seconds; stir in flour and continue stirring until mixture is well browned. Pour in tomato juice and cook until thick. Season with salt and pepper. Serves 8.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 17.

An eventful day in which there may be a sudden and unlooked for opportunity for putting lagging affairs on a sound and enduring basis is shown by interesting planetary configurations. Originality, innovation, progressive ideas and well-organized strategies and policies may advance important aims and objectives, but rather through sound plans and tactics than impulsive or too aggressive procedure. Use restraint, and strange circumstances may be diverted to a tide to security. Slow but sure does it.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of major events. Unforeseen circumstances are apt to turn static situations into the ways of progress and accomplishment. Practical interests, possessions and important objectives may receive sudden acceleration, and should be handled with poise and self-control, rather than emotional or impulsive attack. Natural resources, originality and audacity may win firm fortune with increased possessions and prestige.

A child born on this day may have unusual talents and practical skill, with energy and enterprise. These may be demonstrated in out-of-the-ordinary achievement, bringing success and position.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too
When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

MRS. CLAUDE EWING PRESENTS MUSICIANS

Mrs. H. H. Clingan Entertains Central Methodist Guild; Richard, Eugene Griesbach, Gloria Morton and Mrs. C. E. Reese Assist.

MRS. CLAUDE EWING, choir leader at the Central Methodist church, and well known in Mansfield for her yearly leadership of Handel's "Messiah," had charge of the program, Monday afternoon of the Central Methodist Guild. Mrs. Ewing presented some of Mansfield's leading musicians.

Mrs. N. C. Yarger assisted Mrs. Ewing in the program which was presented in the home of Mrs. H. H. Clingan, 208 Vennum avenue, who is an organist and choir leader at the Christian church, and a teacher of piano.

Presented by Mrs. Ewing were: Richard and Eugene Griesbach, violinists, and Carol Ann Spencer, accompanist, who played "Three Little Symphonies" by Dancla; Gloria Morton, who favored the group with a piano solo, "Scarf Dance," by Chaminade, and Mrs. S. E. Reese, soprano, who, accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Clingan, sang "The Day Is Mine" by Harriet Ware and "I Will Lay Me Down In Peace" by D. Buck.

Roll call at the meeting was answered by famous sayings about music. Mrs. N. C. Yarger played one line from each of twenty-five hymns and each one tried to name the hymn. This contest was won by Mrs. Roy Winters.

Mrs. R. L. Foulke discussed the introduction of Christianity into Russia. She stated that President Roosevelt has asked that there be religious freedom in Russia, but Russia does not grant her people freedom of assembly for worship and her citizens are not free to instruct the children and youth in religion. However, many Russians hope religious freedom, as enjoyed in America, will be their privilege as an outcome of this war.

Mrs. John Roman and Mrs. R. L. Foulke presided at a table, candle-lighted with tall white candles, and centered with green and white flowers. St. Patrick refreshments were served to twenty-five members and two guests, Mrs Herman Brunk and Mrs. C. E. Reese. Mrs. Frank Breckenridge, Mrs. R. R. Martin, Mrs. M. R. Guiher, and Mrs. E. E. Weaver assisted the hostess, Mrs. Clingan.

Mrs. J. H. Todd Entertains At Women's Club

Members of the Round Table club met Monday at the Women's Club for a dessert luncheon, held at 1:30 p. m., at which Mrs. J. H. Todd was hostess.

Mrs. E. J. Horn, a guest, and 16 members were in attendance at the luncheon. Mrs. B. L. Chase presided at the table, which was centered with an arrangement of spring flowers.

In the absence of Mrs. R. S. Bemiller, Mrs. Horn presented a paper written by Mrs. Bemiller entitled "Women In Industry." Mrs. Horn told of the women working on land, in factories, railroads, as aviators and other occupations associated with the war effort. In closing, she told of the N.Y.A. plant at Mifflin.

The next meeting will be a guest meeting and tea to be held March 29 at the Women's club. That meeting is scheduled for two o'clock. Mrs. H. L. Creveling and Mrs. Hobart Scattergood are associate hostesses.

O. Of E. S. Has Monday Meeting

The Masonic Temple was the scene, Monday night of a meeting of the Order of Eastern Star, at which time the business meeting and initiation services was presided over by Mrs. Miriam Hoffman, worthy matron.

The next meeting will be held April 5 for annual inspection. The inspecting officer at that time will be Mrs. Ethel Goff at Carey, Ohio, who is a deputy grand matron. Luncheon will be served at that meeting.

W. C. T. U. WILL MEET.

The County Institute of W. C. T. U. will meet in the United Presbyterian church Thursday for an all day meeting. A covered-dish dinner will be served at 12 o'clock.

MOOSE COMMITEE.

The hospital Guild, Women of the Moose held a meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Clarence Rist. St. Patrick's appointments were used when luncheon was served. Spring flowers were used as a centerpiece. A brief business meeting was held. Cards was the diversion of the evening. The next meeting in April will be announced at a later date.

Mrs. M'Dermott Presents Paper At Study Club

"Operas and Recordings" was the topic chosen by Mrs. T. J. MacDermott, Davis road, when she presented the program to members of the Little Flower Study club, whom she entertained Monday night.

At the conclusion of the interesting paper, Mrs. MacDermott summarized Verdi's "a Forza Del Destino," which is being brought to Cleveland for the first time since 1927.

Recordings were played of selections from each of the other operas to be presented at Cleveland in April.

The next meeting will be in the form of a covered dish dinner to be held in the home of Mrs. J. F. Ehalt, West Second street. That meeting is scheduled for March 29.

Have Meeting Of Bethany Class

The Bethany class of the Gospel Center Sunday School held its monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. Joe Baumberger, Bell street Monday night.

Following the business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. Donald Parrett, devotions were led by the teacher, Miss Jane Smith. A linen shower was held in honor of Mrs. Rhea Hammett. Prizes in contests were won by Mrs. David Parrett and Mrs. Clyde Swank, who presented them to the honoree. A lovely luncheon was served late in the evening. The next meeting of the group will be held at the home of Mrs. Richard Banks, Garden Acres.

MISS MARJORIE URICH WEDS R. M. SALTZGABER

At a lovely announcement tea Sunday afternoon, friends and relatives of Miss Marjorie Ann Urich learned of her marriage, an event of Nov. 7, 1942, to Robert M. Saltzgaber. The affair was given by the new Mrs. Saltzgaber's mother, Mrs. Russell Urich, at her home, 182 Western avenue.

The Mansfield couple was united in marriage at 4 p. m. in Greenup, Ky. Rev. Ben E. Hunt performed the ceremony. The former Miss Urich was attired in a green street length dress trimmed with white embroidery with matching hat. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

At the tea Sunday afternoon Miss Lenore Betz presided at the table which was attractive in St. Patrick decorations. The table was centered with an arrangement of pink and orchid sweet peas, and three crystal candle holders in which were green and white candles. Friends attended from 3 to 5 p. m.

Mrs. Saltzgaber, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Urich, is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school. She is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Mr. Saltzgaber, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Saltzgaber, 11 Summit court, also a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, is employed at the Ideal Electric company. The newly married couple will make their home at 224 Chilton avenue.

144,000 Eggs SCRAMBLED

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — The greatest dish of scrambled eggs ever recorded in California occurred here when a heavy truck and trailer laden with eggs skidded and overturned. The load comprised 400 cases of eggs, making a total of 144,000 eggs that went into the scramble.

The first use of the direct primary in the United States, it is believed, was in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1868.

GALION SOLDIER MISSING ON AFRICAN FRONT, PARENTS TOLD

GALION — Another Galion man reported missing in action in the North African war area is Cleaman J. Neuman, private first class, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Neuman, 370 Grove avenue.

The parents were notified by the war department in Washington in a telegram signed by Major-Gen. James A. Ulio, adjutant general of the U. S. army.

Pfc. Neuman had been in the army for over two years, and was inducted from Elyria where he was employed. He was sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., March 5, 1941.

Born at Sugar Grove, Lake March 30, 1919, he lived in Galion until he was 13 years old when the family moved to Bucyrus. He was graduated from Bucyrus high school in 1937.

He was a member of the infantry and in recent weeks was assigned to a mortar unit. His last letter to his sister, Marcine, of Galion, was written Feb. 13.

The family moved to Galion from Bucyrus last April. A grandfather, Sanford Kurkhart, also lives here.

Following his induction into the army, Pfc. Neuman trained at Camp Wolters, Texas, and other camps. He was stationed at Fort Devens, Mass., with the first division, and went overseas early last August, and then to North Africa, with the American invasion fleet, last November.

The family expresses the hope that he was taken prisoner in the Axis drive in Central Tunisia last month at which time a large number of American soldiers and supplies were captured.

Navy Mothers Welcome Member At Monday Meet

Mrs. Lenna Green was welcomed into the Navy Mothers' club Monday evening when the club met for a regular meeting at the Central Methodist church, at which Maynard Balliett, a sailor on leave, told interesting facts about navy life.

The group has made plans to attend a meeting of the newly-organized Navy Mothers' club in Shelby, which is to be held Tuesday, March 23. Members are urged to attend, and those interested, who do not know the whereabouts of the meeting are asked to call Mrs. Kathryn Sattler for details.

An invitation to the Christian church for a special service for service men, to be held Sunday, March 21, has been accepted.

The club is still making lap robes and comfort kits for wounded sailors in the hospital at Oakland, Calif. Many were turned in at last night's meeting.

The next meeting scheduled for the Navy Mothers' club is Monday, April 5. That meeting will be held at the church.

Fete Miss Turner With Breakfast

Another in the series of prenuptial parties planned for Miss Aileen Turner, the bride-elect of Charles Burton, was given Sunday morning in the form of a breakfast at Paulson's restaurant.

Hostesses at the affair were Miss Carol Chapin and Miss Mary Brooker. Guests were seated at a long table appropriately decorated. Favors were miniature brides and sailors.

After the breakfast, the morning was spent socially. Miss Turner received many lovely gifts of crystal.

HEARS BOOK REVIEW BY MRS. L. E. BECK

Monday Study Club Has Meeting With Mrs. Carlton Fernyak: Forty-Two Members Attend Guest Meeting.

MRS. CARLTON FERNYAK entertained members and guests of the Monday Study club Monday night at her home, on Park avenue west, when Mrs. Loren E. Beck, active in the Little Theater in Galion, gave an interesting review of Sgt. Thornton Wilder's play, "The Skin of Our Teeth." Mrs. Fernyak was assisted by Mrs. Lloyd Downs.

Roll call was answered by members introducing their guests. Twenty members and twenty-two guests were in attendance.

The nominating committee, comprised of Mrs. William Bloor, Mrs. C. H. Bell and Mrs. S. C. Theaker, presented its slate of officers for the coming year. These will be voted upon at the next meeting.

In Mrs. Beck's report of Sgt. Wilder's play, which opened last November in New York, she stated that no play has caused so many favorable and unfavorable comments as this one. Dramatic critics declare it the "wackiest" play ever witnessed, and audiences proclaim it the craziest, yet others insist it is excellent.

Mrs. Beck personally feels the play to be a "funny and crazy 'slapstick' comedy, having an undercurrent of good common sense." Sgt. Wilder always writes unusual plays and this one runs true to form. The playwright describes his play as a comedy. It is a story of a family and shows how the unity of family life sees them through adversities. There are many amusing incidents and most unexpected happenings which occur to excite one's interest.

Sgt. Wilder is now in the intelligence service of the United States air force in Washington, D. C.

When refreshments were served Mrs. George Gaalaas and Mrs. Paul Weir presided at the table. Spring flowers were used as the centerpiece. The next meeting, March 29, will be at the home of Mrs. M. K. Leggett with Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh assisting.

November Bride

Shown above is Mrs. Robert M. Saltzgaber, who before her marriage in November was Miss Marjorie Anne Urich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Urich, 182 Western avenue. Mr. Saltzgaber, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Saltzgaber, is an employe of the Ideal Electric company. Mr. and Mrs. Saltzgaber will make their home at 224 Chilton avenue.

Safety First In Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Ass'n)

Although "damping off" can be prevented, there are no known means of saving plants afflicted with the disease. Excessive moisture, crowded plants, lack of air circulation, high humidity, and lack of sunlight are all factors which help to make this disease successful among plants destined this year for Victory gardens.

Because America needs millions of Victory gardens this year every "safety first" measure to protect seedling plants should be taken. The accompanying Garden-Graph illustrates the problem and what can be done about it.

Figure 1 shows a flat of healthy seedlings which have escaped "damping off" because soils, seeds and container itself were sterilzed.

Figure 3 shows how one can check the spread of "damping off" to the entire flat by immediately digging out the afflicted plants as illustrated, including the soil surrounding them. Following the removal of the sick plants and the soil they grew in the entire flat should be top-dressed with a thin layer of sand or powdered sulphur. Transplanting of the unaffected seedling plants is also a good "safety first measure."

THEATERS

Opens At Ohio.

Dance bands and comedy are all packed together in "Reveille With Beverly," opening tomorrow at the Ohio. The musical film features such artists as Bob Crosby and his band, Ann Miller, dancer, Freddie Slack and his orchestra, Duke Ellington and his band, Count Basie, Frank Sinatra, romantic vocalist, the Radio Rogues, and the Mills brothers.

Million Dollar Spech.

A speech that enabled Marlene Dietrich to sell several million dollars worth of war bonds is repeated in her current Universal picture, "Pittsburgh," ending tomorrow at the Park. One sequence in the film—which shows the conversion of industry for the war effort—calls for Marlene to make a patriotic speech. The actress suggested using one of those she used on a war bond tour. According to Hollywood insiders, the star wrote the speech herself, and she thoroughly believes every word of it. "Secrets of the Underground" is the co-attraction.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

Milner's urge to see the inside of the Veritzen living room must have been strong, I thought, or he never would have accepted that chilling but courteous invitation from the owner of the Lansfield.

"Thank you," he said. "I will just step inside to tell you my errand, but I must not stay. I am in a tremendous hurry."

"Then we will not keep you," his employer told him silkily, as Milner's lips clamped tightly together and the lines around his mouth showed how deep was his fury at the covert insult he dared not resent.

"It is simply this,' he said, with an air of urgent haste; "I have received news which will compel me to go out of the city for a few hours. I may be back in the early morning, but certainly no later than afternoon, and of course I wished to explain this to you personally. I trust my absence will not inconvenience you in any way."

Milner Taken Down a Peg.

Philip Veritzen gave him a stare that was almost insolent.

"My dear fellow," he drawled, "how could your absence inconvenience me? Go when you like, and stay as long as you like."

If he had added, "and if you never come back, that will be all right with me too," he could not have defined Milner's rating with him more clearly, and I think the great impresario never came closer to being knocked down. But with an effort which must have taxed his power of restraint, Milner gave a poised, unhurried answer.

"Thank you," he said. "You are most gracious." Then he looked toward Olga.

"I trust all the ararngements are satisfactory, Madame Veritzen," he said.

Olga, taking her cue from Philip, looked at him with an air of regal condescension which she rarely uses, and then only to deal with insolence.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Milner, thank you," she said. "Everything is very nice."

Then Philip spoke, this time with an air of perfunctory explanation.

"Our party is not yet complete," Philip said. "My son and daughter-in-law have not yet arrived, and I have just heard that our guest of honor will be detained a little while."

When Philip had closed the door on Milner and put up the night chain, he came back with anger-filled eyes.

Praised by Spencer.

"That fawning cur," he said. "I had all I could do to keep from knocking him down."

"I fancy you were brothers under your skins in that desire," my father said dryly. "But you were magnificent, Philip. You took just the right tone with him. He will have food for worried thought over your attitude."

I rose and came toward them, repressing a smile with difficulty.

"You said your guest of honor would be detained," I said demurely. "Is it your pleasure to have him let out of the detention pen?" And to give Olga an explanation of the locked door I added "I told him to lock the door after me."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO-PURPOSE DOUBLES

Some smart penalty doubles have more than the single purpose of increasing the value of each trick by which you beat the declarer. In certain cases, one of them can cause your partner to select a different lead from the one he would otherwise have chosen. By doing so, your side may set the contract by one or more additional tricks. Such a double should never be tried unless you have a smart partner opposite you, who will grasp the idea and follow through to success with it.

This deal was a splendid example of the kind of keen bridge sometimes found in social rubber games. It came in the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wade, in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and made victims of another adroit pair, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gould, keen competitors and strong bidders.

This time they reached out so that, even without the double from Mrs. Wade, Mr. Gould could have taken only eight tricks and would have been down one. The lead would have been the spade 10, the K winning, and seven more tricks could have been run With the double, however, they were set three tricks, for a score of 800, or a clear gain of 700 because of the double.

Phil Wade reasoned that his wife's double could not be based on anything except a winning diamond honor, since she sat over the diamond bid of the dummy. So because of the double he led the diamond 8. Seeing that he couldn't possibly get nine tricks unless the diamond finesse would work, Mr. Gould tried it. The K, of course, won, the spade J came back, trapping the K, and the six tricks in that suit gave the defenders the first seven taken.

Rice Roast In Day's Menu For Economy

By BETSY NEWMAN

WE COOKS and housewives have to keep our eyes open every minute to keep our grocery bills down. If we use eggs in our main dish we have to plan a dessert that has no eggs in it, and so on down the whole list of important foods. We can eke out our butter ration with vitaminized margarine and we can use lard and vegetable shortenings in baking.

Today's Menu

Meatless Rice Roast
Spinach
Raw Vegetable Salad
Apple Sauce Cake
Hot Drink

Apple Sauce Cake

1½ c. strained, unsweetened apple sauce
1 c. brown sugar
½ c. melted shortening
1 c. chopped raisins
1 tsp cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 tsps. soda
2 c. flour

Mix melted shortening with sugar, add apple sauce. Sift flour with soda and spice, sifting a little over the raisins. Or dissolve soda in a little cold water. Add to first mixture, then add raisins and blend. Bake 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until done.

* * *

Meatless Rice Roast

2 c. cooked white or brown rice
2 c. ground whole wheat toast
1 c. ground nuts (pecans or peanuts
2 tbsps. ground onion
4 tbsps. chopped pimiento
2 c. canned tomatoes
2 tbsps. ground green pepper
¼ tsp. sage
1 tsp. salt
4 beaten eggs

Mix ingredients thoroughly, form into a loaf and bake for 1 hour in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve hot with following sauce:

1½ tbsp. fat
1 tbsp. ground onion
3 tbsps. flour
1 c. tomato juice

Melt fat, add onion, and cook gently for a few seconds; stir in flour and continue stirring until mixture is well browned. Pour in tomato juice and cook until thick. Season with salt and pepper. Serves 8.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 17.

An eventful day in which there may be a sudden and unlooked for opportunity for putting lagging affairs on a sound and enduring basis is shown by interesting planetary configurations. Originality, innovation, progressive ideas and well-organized strategies and policies may advance important aims and objectives, but rather through sound plans and tactics than impulsive or too aggressive procedure. Use restraint, and strange circumstances may be diverted to a tide to security. Slow but sure does it.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of major events. Unforeseen circumstances are apt to turn static situations into the ways of progress and accomplishment. Practical interests, possessions and important objectives may receive sudden acceleration, and should be handled with poise and self-control, rather than emotional or impulsive attack. Natural resources, originality and audacity may win firm fortune with increased possessions and prestige.

A child born on this day may have unusual talents and practical skill, with energy and enterprise. These may be demonstrated in out-of-the-ordinary achievement, bringing success and position.

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Sgt. Nick Linster, home on 10-day furlough from Camp Atterbury, Indiana, is improving his time these days by putting the bee on his friends for their old golf balls.

He expects to make a haul by raiding the practice bag owned jointly by Pete and Thelma Linster, but he makes it clear that won't let the rest of his friends off.

"We lose balls fast out there in Indiana," says Nick, "and I will tell you why.

* * *

"I've got my clubs at camp, and the other day the old man (commanding officer) and I decided we would take a few swings out in front of our barracks.

"I hit one, and it went straight, too, but not far. Then the old man hit one, and topped it. He is supposed to be a pretty good golfer too.

* * *

"So the old man hit another one. Wheeee. There it went in a big turn to the right, and bang, right through the door of the medical dispensary."

* * *

"'Grab those clubs and duck in here,' shouted the old man. 'That's an order.'

"I grabbed, and we ducked. But do you know? No one came out to see who was smacking golf balls through the dispensary door. Those medicos probably were too busy battling over that ball.

"But we were afraid to go out and look for the other two we hit. I've got to have more balls if we're going to lose 'em that fast."

* * *

"And how do you like Indiana, Nick?" I asked him.

"I don't like it," was the quick retort. "All that flat land, miles and miles of mud, nothing but mud.

"When this war's over, I don't care if I never see Indiana again."

* * *

The good neighbor policy, according to Nick, should begin away from home, far, far away, to get around that Indiana mud.

Heath Spurns Second Offer

Would Rather Continue Work In Shipyard.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. —(AP)— As the Cleveland Indians held their first formal practice session of the spring training season today, Roger Peckinpaugh, club vice president, announced Outfielder Jeff Heath had rejected the terms of his second contract. Heath is the only one of the 28 Tribesmen classed as a holdout.

"We have made Jeff our final offer and the next move is up to him," Peckinpaugh commented.

* * *

At Seattle, Wash., Heath said he would rather continue working in a shipyard than play baseball at a sharp salary cut.

* * *

He reported the second offer was more than the original contract proposal of 40 per cent less than last year.

Despite infield troubles Manager Lou Boudreau maintained "We're still the team to beat."

The young manager named Catcher Otto Denning as his first baseman until proven otherwise and said Russ Peters would replace Ray Mack if the regular second sacker is inducted. Les Fleming, the Indians' first baseman last season, is staying in war work and Mack took his selective service board physical examination in Cleveland last week-end.

* * *

The center-field position was left vacant by the trade of Roy Weatherly to the New York Yankees but Boudreau has definite ideas about a replacement.

* * *

"Oris Hockett is our man there unless young Hank Edwards can beat him out. Hockett's arm is the decisive factor. I want our best thrower in center field, and I guess none of the other outfielders can give Hockett an argument in that department."

DYKES EXPECTED

CHICAGO—(AP)—Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, who recently underwent an operation, is expected tomorrow from the west coast. Wildcats Defeat Harding

Newark Romps Over Marion For Easy Win.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Newark high school's basketball team today joined 15 others awaiting regional play in the state high school Class A cage eliminations by virtue of a 48 to 26 victory over Marion Harding in the finals of the Central district tourney at Columbus last night.

By virtue of the win, the Wildcats earned a spot in the regional meet to be conducted at Dayton Saturday, their foe being Middletown in the 1:30 p. m. opener.

Newark's All-Ohio Forward Freddie Schaus was the game's star with a 28-point scoring spree. Dick Mulvaine, of Marion however, set a new tournament scoring record, totaling 83 points in four games. He got 16 of these last night.

Meanwhile, pairings for regional play were to be completed tonight when drawings are made for the Zanesville Class A meet. Martins Ferry, undefeated in 22 straight games; Greenfield, undefeated in 17 straight; Akron Kenmore and Dover make up the list of quintets who will play there.

Other pairings:

CLASS A

At Bowling Green—Port Clinton vs. Defiance (undefeated in 21 games) and Toledo Woodward vs. Lima Central.

At Kent—(Friday night)—Canton McKinley vs. Akron West; Canton Lehman vs. East Cleveland Shaw.

At Dayton—Xenia Central (defending state champ) vs. Cincinnati Elder and Newark vs. Middletown.

CLASS B.

At Bowling Green — Webster (undefeated in 22 games) vs. Middle Point (unbeaten in 24); Pettisville vs. Wharton.

At Springfield—Berlin vs. Plainville; Tipp City vs Centerville.

At Kent—Bolivar vs. Kent State, Waynesburg vs. Hartville.

At Athens—Rome vs. Yorkville; Utica (undefeated in 22 contests) vs. Corning.

Giant Hurlers Warm Up Arms And Feet

So that's what they mean by warming up? These New York Giant pitchers, from left, Cliff Melton, Van Lingle Mungo and Carl Hubbell, are anything but rookies but they're getting cold feet at their snowy training camp at Lakewood, N. J., where the Giants are training this spring. A little brush pile is ready and when lit, the boys can really warm up.

Hermans Beat Loop Leaders

Blank Tellings Keglers In Commercial C-Loop.

Sons of Herman cut three games off the Tellings Sealtest lead in the Commercial "C" league at Colony alleys last night, blanking the loop leaders, but the margin is still seven games.

Jay Eckleberger of Safety Cabs rolled a straight 200 string of 206-210-231 for scoring honors on a 647 total, while K. Krichbaum turned in a 606 total including a 221 game.

Schmidt of the Hermans had high game of 244, and G. Turner had a 234 game.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— This one ought to start a few arguments on the dull days . . . After testing the Third Battalion at the Del Monte, Calif., Navy Pre-flight school, Lieut. William Neufield, head of the school's testing and measuring department, has concluded that boys from west of the Mississippi river are better physical specimens than the easterners . . . The Del Monte battalion (60 per cent Californians) had an average physical fitness index of 68, as compared to 66.7 for the first four battalions of the Chapel Hill, N. C., Pre Flight school. The standard index is 60—but don't ask us just what that means.

REUNION IN NEW ORLEANS

When Howard Blakeslee, (AP) science editor, visited Tulane University on a recent southern tour, he met "Big Monk" Simons, Tulane's famous trainer . . . They seemed to see something familiar and eventually recalled that when Blakeslee was breaking middle distance running records for the Southern Athletic club back in 1907-08, Big Monk was a teammate who specialized in busting spring records . . . They hadn't seen each other since those days.

SO THEY SAY

None of these items guaranteed: Story from Boston is that the Suffolk Downs race track may be sold soon for a million bucks . . . Auburn alumni are plugging for Pete Cawthon to succeed Jack Meagher as football coach . . . Fort Knox, Ky., which was expected to furnish service opposition for several Big Ten schools, has been ordered to drop all but intra-mural football.

SERVICE DEPT.

Soldier Buck, old-time Louisville fighter who was licked by such guys as young Stribling and Harry Greb, has been discharged from the army because of his age (about 43) and is back on the job as foreman in a defense plant. He's a World War I veteran and has a son in the service.

WALTERS INJURED

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — Pitcher Buckey Walters is the first casualty of the present baseball campaign.

The top-flight hurler of the Cincinnati Reds attempted to clear a high hurdle and was spilled. X-rays showed he suffered a bruised heel and a slightly sprained left ankle. He will be idle five days.

Barney Floored By Malaria Again

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— A recurrence of malaria contracted in the Solomon Islands today hospitalized Marine Corp Barney Ross, hero of Guadalcanal, and may bring his projected tour of defense plants in several cities to a halt.

Ross, former welterweight and lightweight boxing champion, was at a mid-Manhattan hotel with his wife and some friends last night when he collapsed shortly before he was to have addressed a Red Cross rally in Madison Square Garden.

He was hurried to St. Albans' Naval hospital on Long Island and the Public Relations office of the 3d Naval District announced that his condition was "not serious."

No additional details were available. The officer in charge said he did not know how long Ross would be hospitalized.

ASHLAND HOLDS FIRST DIM-OUT

Factory Whistle To Sound Test Thursday; Lights To Signal All Clear.

ASHLAND — Ashland's first dim-out under the direction of the Ashland civilian defense council is scheduled for Thursday at 9:30 p. m., the dim-out to be signalled by the blast of a local factory whistle. The all-clear signal at 9:45 p. m. will consist of the flashing on and off of city street lights, citizens have been informed.

Mayor Glenn B. Haller has given written authority for the dim-out test to Earl E. Leed, executive director of the Ashland civilian defense council, under the power granted the mayor in an ordinance passed by council in April, 1942. The city ordinance provides penalties for violations of the dim-out and blackout regulations.

Since traffic must proceed at a speed not over 15 miles per hour in the city limits during the dim-out, Ashland patrolmen and members of the auxiliary staff will station themselves at all highways entering the city to warn incoming traffic of the speed limit during the dim-out.

J. F. Norton Dead; Was Grandson Of Bucyrus Founder

BUCYRUS — Funeral arrangements are pending for Fernando J. Norton, 83, veteran Bucyrus florist and grandson of Samuel Norton, founder of Bucyrus, who died at his home, Spring and Charles street, Monday afternoon.

Mr. Norton was born in Bucyrus, Dec. 28, 1859, the son of Jefferson and Eleanor Byron Norton. Educated in Bucyrus, Mr. Norton early in life displayed an interest in nursery work and started a window box which developed into the present greenhouses which he has operated for more than 60 years.

Mr. Norton was twice married, his first marriage being to Anna L. Adams who died in 1910. Of six children born to the couple, four survive, Arthur F., who has assumed the management of the business; Mrs. Joseph Daley of Oberline, Tex.; Mrs. Mabel Ellis of Buffalo, N. Y.; and Harry. Mr. Norton is also survived by his widow, Helen W. Roehr Norton.

Mr. Norton was a member of the Bucyrus Fifty Year club, the Eastern Star and Demas lodge, Knights of Pythias, and the Masons.

William Wise and Sons are in charge of funeral arrangements.

NEEDS $5,000

ASHLAND—Five thousand dollars remain to be raised in Ashland county to complete the Red Cross War fund campaign for $23,000, it was revealed today after a check-up of week-end contributions had been tallied.

Many solicitations in local industries are yet to be reported and several county workers have not made their reports to headquarters. The completed reports may bring the goal in sight, campaign chairmen believe.

NAMED TO POST

BUCYRUS—Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Souders today learned of the appointment of their son, Hylen, as superintendent of public schools at Galena, O.

Souders is a graduate of Bucyrus high school of the class of 1936 and of Ohio Northern university in 1941. He has been teaching at the Cridersville high school.

MINSTREL SHOW PRESENTED AT GALION P.T.A. 'FATHERS' NIGHT'

GALION — Presented by the men of Galion as "Fathers' Night" program for the West Parent-Teachers association, the Cotton Pickers minstrel provided more than two hours of highly entertaining comedy to a packed house at Senior high school auditorium Monday evening. The performance will be repeated to another audience of the same size Wednesday evening, reservations indicate.

This is the second annual minstrel to be presented by the men of Galion, with Earl Logan as general chairman of the committee in charge of the show. He was assisted by James Walker, Richard Patterson, George Rule, Charles F. Tracht, Kenneth Rensch, Jack Gay, Lowell Ness, Carl Baehr, Jack Connolly, Franklin Craun, and G. W. Staub.

An orchestra under the direction of Charles F. Tracht provided the musical background for the presentation while a chorus supported the soloists.

Carl Baehr was interlocutor and the blackface comedians included James Walker, Jimmy Nichols, Andy Anker, Fred Woodbury, Glenn Potter, Clarence Decker, G. W. Staub, and Jack Connolly.

The opening number followed two selections by the orchestra, was the singing of the national anthem by the audience, with orchestral accompaniment.

Soloists taking part in the production were Robert Tracht, James Walker, Elwood Christman, Fred Woodbury, Horace Braden, Andy Anker, Marion Engard, Lowell Ness, George Rule, Richard Patterson, Fred Wilson, Harry Meier, Jack Connolly, Louis Girton, Franklin Craun, and Jack Gay.

Specialty numbers were presented by the U. S. army signal school trainees, Russell Hye, Jimmy Nichols and Glenn Potter.

Members of the chorus included the following men: George Rule, Lowell Ness, Marion Engard, Louis Girton, Richard Patterson, Fred Wilson, James Lymper, Edward Dougherty, Carl Dickinson, Philip Neumann, Charles B. Monroe, Russell Nichols, Melvin Nichols, Franklin Craun, Robert Tracht, Horace Braden, C. B. Carleton, Kenneth Ness, Roland Ireland, Paul Koppe, Elwood Christman, Clinton Kehrer, Arla Pfeifer, Clayton Howman, David Bauer, Mervin Christman, Gilbert Plack, Lloyd Ridenour, Charles Klossner, Wayne Gledhill, Ralph Mohat, Harold Marshall, Edward A. Byrns, Clyde Kunkel, Paul Flick, Harold Muth and Robert Spangler.

Charles Tracht was director of the orchestra and Kenneth Rensch was pianist.

Stage properties were handled by Joe Schnelker, Ralph Pollock, O. J. Dewalt, Kay Powers, George Piehler, Bert Cole, Fred Staub, John Maxim, Glenn Gwinner, Andrew Plack, Dick Sprow, Ralph Spaid, B. W. Myers, and E. R. Pickering.

Rev. R. R. Elliker was chairman of the ushers, and publicity was in charge of Walter Goshorn.

MIXED TRENDS MARK TRADING IN STOCK MART

68 Million Dollar Rise In Commercial Loans During Past Week Reported.

NEW YORK (UP)—Trends were moderately mixed in today's early stock market proceedings.

Up fractions at a quiet opening were U. S. Gypsum, Bethlehem, Great Northern, Pullman and Southern Pacific. Small declines were recorded for General Motors, United Fruit, American Water Works and U. S. Rubber.

Boardrooms saw a constructive item in the Federal Reserve compilation disclosing loans by member banks in 101 cities to commerce, industry and agriculture rose $68,000,000 during the week ended March 10.

HALT LOOMS

Report Says Navy May Close 17, Over 38 Enlistments.

Possibility exists that the enlistment of men 17 years of age and those over 38 in the U. S. Naval Reserve may be shut down in the near future, Chief Specialist Harry D. Houck, of the Mansfield Navy recruiting station said yesterday.

He urged all men in these age groups who are interested in enlisting to do so as soon as possible before an official order prevents them.

A change in the restriction of the marriage of WAVES has also been received by recruiting officials. The wife of a man serving in the marines, army, or coast guard may enlist in the WAVES although the wife of an enlisted man or officer serving in the U. S. navy may not.

When a single woman joins this service she must execute an agreement not to marry during the period of training. Formerly she was free to marry a man in any service other than the navy upon the completion of her training but new orders indicate that there will be no restriction upon her marriage following her training.

Congregation Will Observe Feast Of Esther March 20, 21

Joining with Jews all over the world, members of the Jacob Synagogue will honor two great members of their faith when they celebrate Purim or the Feast of Esther. Two days of services are being planned by Rabbi Daniel Rub as a part of this celebration Saturday and Sunday.

The festival has its origin in the Biblical story of Esther, Queen of Persia, and her heroic fight against Haman, the scheming prime minister. She risks her life to save her people and Mordecai against whom Haman has brought special charges. The king, Ahasuerus, heeding Esther's plea decrees that Haman be hanged and that the Jews arm themselves against the henchmen of Haman. The victory which the Jews won at that time has remained in Jewish history an occasion for thanksgiving and rejoicing.

Rabbi Rub is planning services to be held at the Synagogue Saturday at 8 p. m. At this time it is customary that a scroll, containing the story, is read. At 10 a. m. Sunday the second day of the Feast of Esther will begin with services at the Synagogue. Sunday at 8 p. m. an informal gathering in keeping with the joyful spirit of the occasion, will be held.

Crow Comes Back To Farm Home for Customary Meal

NEW ORLEANS (INS)—The title of this story might well be the return of the prodigal crow.

Two years ago Virgil Marsh while about his farm chores found two baby crows in an abandoned nest. He took them to the Marsh farmhouse and eventually raised them to maturity. One bird which he called "Harry" became a household pet [illegible] stayed in a nearby woods [illegible] come to the house for [illegible].

Last October Harry [illegible] the wilds and now [illegible] a large flock of wild crows.

Marsh saw or heard nothing of his pet until a few days ago. Hearing a tapping at the farmhouse door Marsh opened it to find his ebony pet waiting expectantly for his bowl of bread and milk.

'ZOOT SUITERS' GET LIFE

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The long, drooping [illegible] of the zoot suit apparently caused [illegible] criminal court here to believe [illegible] what wearers of zoot suits most appreciate is "length." So [illegible] sentences were imposed on Henry Leyvas, 19, Robert Telles, 17 and Joseph Ruiz, 17, convicted of first degree murder in the beating to death by a gang of 17 "Zoot Suiters" of another "Zoot Suiter" at a picnic.

The ground around Mogador, Moroccan port, is so low that the city becomes an island in times of high water.

SEEK FATE OF FIVE FLIERS

Army Authorities Probe Plane Crash In West.

PORTLAND, Ore. (INS)—Army authorities sought today to determine the fate of five army fliers whose wrecked bomber was found last night near Dunsmuir, Cal.

Searchers failed to discover any trace of the men, although a parachute was found near the wreckage, the Portland Air Base Public Relations office said.

A sixth crew member parachuted to safety before the crash and expressed belief that his companions, too, probably bailed out.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Begins Duties—Miss Mary Hughes, former city employe and recently engaged in a clerical capacity with the Visiting Nurses association, today began her duties in the city finance offices as bookkeeper for the sewer department.

"Experience" Meeting—American Legion auxiliary members will have an "experience" meeting Monday night when a covered dish luncheon will be held at the Legion Home. Members will tell their method of earning the dollars they contribute on this evening.

Collection Swells—Yesterday's mail receipts of $15,407 in the county treasurer's office swelled the two real estate property tax receipts to $688,905, Treasurer Charles Payne reported today. Tabulations are not yet complete with many letters containing payments yet unopened.

Warn Retailers—Ration Chairman C. C. Beelman today warned retailers concerning the practice of defacing ration books and stamps as a part of a voluntary ration scheme. Such stamps, Beelman warned, will not be accepted for credit to ration banking accounts.

Guest Speaker—Kenneth Dirlam, assistant secretary of the Mansfield Building and Loan Association, will be guest speaker at the Kiwanis club meeting Thursday noon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. He will talk on the subject, "Side Lights In the Preparation of Advertising."

Meet Wednesday—The Woodland Red Cross nutrition class will meet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at Woodland school with Mrs. A. C. Tuttle as instructor. All interested persons in the neighborhood are eligible to attend, and arrangements have been made for persons who missed the first two sessions of the class to "catch up" on the work covered.

Attend Convention—Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller and Principal Glenn Rohleder of Senior high school will go to Chicago Monday to attend the annual meeting of the Northcentral Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. Sessions will continue through Friday. The Mansfield board of education last night voted to grant expense funds for the two school officials to make the trip.

Sees Man On Porch—Mrs. Earl Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, told Patrolmen John Steel and Don Mitchell last night that a man she had seen lying on the front porch of the Troll home apparently was intoxicated and had been removed by his friends before the patrolmen arrived in response to a prowler report.

Few Listings—With April 1 the deadline for listing personal tax items only 1,800 of an estimated 4,500 have been listed, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today. He urged the taxpayers to list at once even if they are unable to pay until later. Payments will be received until April 10 without penalty.

Fuel Oil Registration—Consumers whose fuel oil registration books expire March 31 may renew them at once, Ration Chairman C. C. Beelman announced today, with registration at the ration board office at 58½ North Main street. Residents of Bellville and Butler communities can do so at their distribution offices.

Two Accidents—Traffic Patrolman William Taylor late yesterday reported minor damage resulted in collisions of autos driven by Ralph E. Hutt, 65 Clifton avenue, and J. A. Yarga, 653 West Third street, at Mulberry and Sixth streets; and Harold C. Olinger, 871 Lexington avenue, and Orie A. Rush, Mansfield R. D. 3, at North Park and Main streets.

Nephew Dies—Mrs. Robert S. Gibson, 61 Brinkerhoff avenue, has received word of the death of her nephew, John D. McKey, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. McKey, former residents of this city, at Darlington, S. C. Besides his parents, who now reside at Plant City, Fla., McKey is survived by his wife and two daughters. Funeral services will be held in Darlington.

ON EVERY FRONT— IN EVERY BATTLE!

Wherever the fighting men of the United Nations see action today, Westinghouse wartime products are at work—on every front, in every battle.

There are already thousands of these products—electrical, electronic, mechanical, chemical, plastic. More of them are coming to help in the fight. Day and night, the search goes on in our laboratories and engineering departments to find still more effective ways of helping our fighting men to bring victory nearer and surer.

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING COMPANY, PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA

1. In North Africa, American tanks—equipped with a special Westinghouse gun device—are giving American forces new striking power. These tanks, unlike enemy tanks, are able to fire with incredible accuracy at full speed over rough ground such as the African desert.

2. In Russia, American planes—supporting the ground forces—are helping to win battle after battle. Westinghouse builds scores of electrical, plastic, and other parts for these planes, provides vital equipment for producing the aluminum and magnesium from which they are made.

3. On the Seven Seas, helping to keep our supply lines open, are scores of Westinghouse products. Among them are turbines, gears, electric drives, motors, anti-aircraft gun mounts, instruments and controls.

4. In the Pacific, Westinghouse-built "walkie-talkies" and other types of communications equipment, X-rays, bomb-fuses, anti-tank shells, and other weapons are doing their share to lick the Japs.

5. In the Bombing of Germany, delicate, precision-made aircraft instruments and radios direct our planes to their targets. Much of this blind-flying and navigating equipment is made by Westinghouse.

6. On the Production Front, Westinghouse products—from generators to motors, switches, transformers, automatic controls—are on the job in hundreds of war plants . . . helping win the battle of production.

IN THE CAPITAL--

By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON--As the British and ourselves sit down to talk it over--especially through Anthony Eden and Cordell Hull--we should keep one fact ringing in our ears.

If the British and ourselves can't get along together, then the idea of any real cooperation among nations must be given up as a hopeless dream.

If two such reasonable and civilized men as the British foreign minister and our Secretary of state personifying the spirit of mutual accommodation cannot find themselves in basic agreement, what two men could do it?

Clapper

If our two nations can't do it where can we find any other nations to work with?

Our security and Britain's security demand a close Anglo-American understanding.

Two wars in our time have demonstrated to Great Britain that she is not strong enough alone to protect her interests. She has had to have the help of the United States in both instances. No other nation can serve as a substitute for us in this regard. Because Britain is an island power, depending upon trade and activities all over the world, she must have naval and air strength spread around to protect those interests. We are the only power with such a spread, the only nation that will have the strength in the Pacific.

On our side, it is clear that we cannot protect ourselves in the Atlantic without the help of Great Britain. That forward base must be in friendly hands. We must have the opposite shore of the Atlantic in friendly hands. This war has shown the necessity of that. Further development of the long-range airplane will make the case even stronger. If the Nazis were now in Dakar, in Liberia, on the Gold Coast, and if the Nazis were in control of the North Atlantic islands, or if they were only able to keep England neutral, the submarine threat as we have known it in the last year would be multiplied many-fold and our trouble would not be limited to sinking of merchantmen within sight of our coast. The importance of the British Isles to our military security is elementary in all of our military planning, but politically it is not as clear to us as, for instance, the importance of the Panama canal is.

* * *

All of that is on the basis that there won't be any real United Nations organization, and that it will be each nation standing on its own and protecting its front and rear by alliances and whatever other methods seem necessary.

If there is to be a real United Nations, then the collaboration of the United States and Great Britain as the two largest democratic forces in it is essential. For if these two nations, alike in language, so alike in political outlook, so closely related by blood and history, cannot stay together, and United Nations organization is doomed to fatal division inside, and its democratic future would be seriously endangered.

* * *

After the last war Germany played France and England against each other and was able to work herself back to threaten the whole western world. If we do not continue our joint chiefs of staff, our other joint committees through which our efforts are pooled, we shall be inviting some other power to use the same method to extend its power.

We shall have severe competition with Great Britain in shipping after the war. While our Liberty ships will be good for little except as a standby reserve, others of our wartime ships will be competitive ships. Our commercial airplanes will compete with British air interests. We shall compete in many foreign markets. The Ottawa agreements are not acceptable to America's interest.

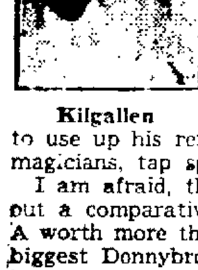
But this competition cannot be allowed to force the two countries apart so that each will stand isolated and in potential danger. That would weaken our situation whether there is to be a real United Nations or nothing of that kind. We have to compete—as we do here in the American way—without allowing our competition to destroy our strength and security.

ON BROADWAY--

By Dorothy Kilgallen

I HAVE observed that the point rationing system is Broadway's current favorite topic of conversation and, inevitably, the local showmen are wondering how the set-up can be adopted to alleviate shortages in their own field. The shortages, of course, are in available talent with so many patron-packed clubs bidding for entertainers.

In Lindy's the other night there was talk of some sort of point scheme being worked out so that a more equitable distribution of acts could be arranged, and it seemed not a bad idea.



Kilgallen

As the boys explained it, each bistro owner would have a maximum number of, say 48 points, with which to fool around during a given night-club period. In building his floor show, he might get a comedian like Henny Youngman, Jackie Miles or Romo Vincent for 12 points, a girl singer like Jane Pickens, Mitzi Green or Maggi McNellis for another dozen points, and be able to use up his remaining coupons on dance teams, magicians, tap specialties, and the like.

I am afraid, though, that any attempt to work out a comparative point allotment making singer A worth more than dance team B would start the biggest Donnybrook ever seen in this town. That is where Broadway differs from Washington. Whatever the OPA's problems, at least they can rate soup as less valuable than tomato juice and not be assailed with a terrific howl of injured pride.

New York is rapidly becoming the taxi-drivers' paradise of all time. With so many fares around the boys can be as choosy as an earl seeking an eligible husband for his prettiest daughter. In fact, I am discovering that you can't be sure you have a cab even after you're seated inside. If your destination is in a direction the driver doesn't wish to take, it is back into the cold street for you, Mac, and wait for the next one.

The other morning around 2 a. m.– and a freezing morning it was– I spied a taxicab parked on Broadway at 51st, motor off. Inside, the driver sat calmly reading his daily report sheet, while outside some five or six would-be passengers tried vainly to open the locked doors.

I have a complete picture of what the hackie was thinking. Back in the "Waiting for Lefty" days, he probably starved on $12 a week, and he promised himself that some day, somehow, he would park on Broadway on a frosty night and have his revenge. This was it—the hackie snug inside, the fares beating with frozen fingers on his window pane.

I am fascinated by the current tiff between Clare Luce and the executive mansion, which expressed itself in rather a sharp departure from etiquette the other day when Miss Luce replied to a "purely social" invitation with a blast at various New Deal policies. And I wonder whether Clare's social innovation will catch on. She is a personal, important lady, given to setting styles, and quite possibly the new rule of etiquette will appeal to the lay public. If so, the results should be stimulating.

Let us suppose, for example, that Mrs. John Jones, a housewife in Indianapolis, Ind., receives a letter from her old friend, Mrs. Weamus, inviting the Joneses to Sunday dinner. Following the Luce trend, the Jones' reply might run something like this:

"Herman and I will be happy to break bread with you, Sophie dear, but before we come, there are certain criticisms that I cannot refrain from voicing. I feel that on such matters as choice of curtains, furniture arrangement, and other domestic matters, you have been guilty of grave errors of judgment. Your linen closet is in a state of chaos and your front yard is a triumph of muddle-headed planning. You are guilty of foolish sentimentality in your labor relations with the cook and maid, and your habit of spreading crumbs outside for passing pigeons is an open invitation to unbridled freedom of the air. However, Herman and I will be delighted to see you again."

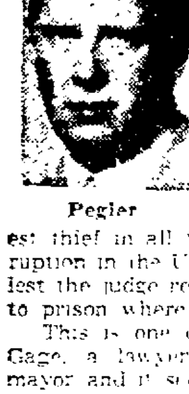
And that would be that, with nothing left for Mrs. Jones to do but type duplicate copies of the note and send them around to the newspapers and wire services.

FAIR ENOUGH--

By Westbrook Pegler

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Well, sir, you just wouldn't know the Paris of the western plains today.

The roulette and blackjack joints are shut, the keno parlors where a fellow's old lady used to park her hulk and frivol away the hours and the money for the rent have faded into the wicked past and the municipal payroll has been cut from 5200 to about 3000. The outfit which used to draw $5000 a month for looking for leaks in the city water system has lost a client and proceedings are pending to get the money back on rather obvious grounds. The place where tired stockmen in from the range with their cattle and sheep used to lunch because they loved good food and incidentally scan the architecture of the waitresses who hadn't a thing to wear, has been converted to other uses and old Tom Pendergast, the meanest, greediest thief in all the dirty history of municipal corruption in the U. S. A. is afraid to open his mouth lest the judge revoke his parole and send him back to prison where he certainly belongs.



Pegler

This is one city where reform took. John B. Gage, a lawyer, is serving his second term as mayor and it seems to be up to him whether he gets a third two-year term in 1941. He has indicated that he will quit then but the job takes only a few hours a day and he might be induced to stick around. Anyway, the city manager is the one who really runs a city under the managerial system and Perry Cookingham, who was lured away from Saginaw, Mich., at $15,000 a year, three times the mayor's pay, has no politics and believes that city government should serve the people and not the mob.

At city hall a fellow at a desk greets you in the manner of a hotel clerk and offers to call up and see if your man is in or which office you ought to go to on your particular business. The elevator operators are little cuties in pretty uniforms by contrast with the seedy bums chosen from the precinct rolls to whom ancient custom has assigned such jobs elsewhere. And in one office a lady receptionist said, "I will be happy to see if he is in."

The chief of police is Harold Anderson, a regular cop, up from patrolman, and it seems that they like him better than they liked Lear B. Reed, a former FBI man who took over in the first shake-up after the old administration was run out.

The lug is off the cops, the firemen and other city employes who used to contribute as much as half their miserable and uncertain pay in election years, and, at other times, would be cut to 50 per cent without warning so that the mob could make ends meet, on the books. This helped them to carry the overload of more than 2000 jobs. All jobs were political then and although these people were fiercely loyal to Pendergast, the old rascal robbed them of money they needed for living and had the gall to call himself their friend. He never was anyone's friend but his own.

He was let out of prison much too soon for if he had been made to serve the rest of his life, he would have had a bargain. But his was the old familiar whine of the elderly crook who gets a little punishment after a life of rich living at the expense of the community and to the detriment of free government.

He was terribly sick, and a faithful New Dealer, moreover, so he got a parole and now lives in his big house in the country club district, and wears a gag. The government took him for a lot of money but plainly he isn't broke and his ready-mix concrete business and his liquor business are still going strong for he always did sell good concrete and his whisky was as nutritious as any other.

But the terms of his parole forbid him to go outside the city limits and if he does discuss politics with anyone, back he goes to Leavenworth. That is why he will clap his hands over his ears and duck if anyone just mentions votes, elections, the fourth term or any subject that might be political or lead to politics.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE TAX BOOST ATTACKED

Senate Committee Told Bill Would Benefit 200 Large Manufacturers.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS —The administration's bill to increase the unemployment insurance tax was criticized last night as a method to benefit 200 large manufacturers at the expense of 57,600 other employers.

The criticism came from Ted Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio CIO, in a hearing before the senate commerce and labor committee.

The measure would levy a maximum surtax of one per cent on the pay rolls of plants expanded by war production and would add an additional $5,000,000 a year to the state fund from which unemployment benefits are paid, state officials say.

Silvey asserted the bill was designed to circumvent the merit rating system, by which employers' contributions to the unemployment insurance fund are increased or decreased according to their stability of employment.

He said 200 major war plants, their income and pay rolls vastly increased by government orders, would have to pay a higher tax during the two-year life of the proposed legislation. Later, however, their war-time contributions would make them entitled to lower rates when unemployment sets in, Silvey added.

He declared the $5,000,000 a year in extra contributions would be "only a thimbleful compared with what will be needed for benefits when the layoff of workers begins."

A resolution suggesting a national constitutional convention, which would consider limiting the president's tenure to eight consecutive years, was sent to committee. Its authors are Reps. Paul R. Brances (R., Franklin) and Robert A. Wilkinson (R., Van Wert).

A bill approved by the senate and sent to the house would authorize municipal fire departments to give protection to suburbs and rural districts.

GIVE MORE AID

Mansfield Dentists To Work Extra Half Day at Clinic.

Members of the Mansfield Dental society, holding their March meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night, voted to give one more half-day a week to the Mansfield dental clinic in the City building, because of the increase in the number of cases.

This program, it was decided, will be followed until the end of the school year, and brings the total time devoted to the clinic to three half-days per week.

At the business meeting, which followed a dinner for 18 members, Dr. Norman H. Denner, Cleveland, lectured on "Bridgework" and showed movies pertinent to the subject. Dr. T. J. McDermott, president of the Ohio State Dental association, was a guest and invited members of the Mansfield society to attend the spring clinic of the Cleveland Dental society in May.

Assignments to the staff of General hospital were made, three dentists being named for 60-day periods. The next meeting will be held April 12. Dr. W. Frank Wilson is president of the society.

EX-MANSFIELD RESIDENT DIES

Emma R. Allen, 86, Taken By Death At Marion.

Emma R. Allen, 86, former resident of Mansfield, died today at the home of her son, Glenn E. Allen of Marion. She had been ill one week.

Mrs. Allen was born in Mansfield Aug. 28, 1856. She was the widow of Chauncey Allen, who died Oct. 8, 1908.

She was a member of the First Lutheran church and a charter member of the American Legion auxiliary at Caledonia.

Besides her son Glenn, she is survived by another son, Francis W. Allen of Woodbury, Conn.

Funeral services are to be conducted at the Hims and Allen Funeral home in Caledonia at 2 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

7 SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS HIRED

Board of Education Employs Married Women To Fill Staff Vacancies.

Still troubled by vacancies in the teaching and secretarial staffs, the Mansfield board of education last night employed seven substitute teachers, all married women, granted two leaves-of-absence, and accepted two resignations.

Teacher appointments approved by the board included Mrs. A. LeMoine Derr, part-time at Prospect school; Mrs. Dean Rex, part-time at Woodland school; Mrs. Mabel Roberts, Johnny Appleseed Junior high school; Mrs. Gladys Gongwer, Johnny Appleseed Junior high school; Frances Shultz, Johnny Appleseed Junior high school; Mrs. G. P. Van Arnam, Johnny Appleseed Junior high school, and Mrs. Mary Cooper, West Fifth street school.

Resignations acted upon by the board were those of Mrs. Elizabeth Zeller and Margaret West, both of Johnny Appleseed Junior high school.

Mrs. Dorotha Stearns at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school, was granted a leave-of absence because of ill health, and Mrs. Margaret Manz, West Fifth Street school obtained a leave to join her soldier husband at an army training center.

Supt. W. L. Miller reported he had transferred Harold Ramsey from Johnny Appleseed school to Senior high school to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. A. McClure, jr.

INFANT DIES AT LEXINGTON

Michael Richard Schunatz, four-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schunatz, jr., died Monday at the family home in Lexington. The child was born in Mansfield.

Survivors include: the parents, the father now in the army air corps at Bowman Field, Ky., and the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gremling, John Schuantz and Mrs. William Stoehr.

The body was removed to the Gremling home at 163 South Mulberry street. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday at St. Peter's Catholic church with Msgr. R. C. Goebel in charge. Burial will be in the Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

Up and Down THE STREET

Not very pleased over the outlook, County Engineer Howard C. Sword today returned to his inspection of county roads. His travels so far have revealed the heaviest damage in years, he said, and the warm weather over Sunday aggravated the condition of the rural roads. Reduced revenue from gasoline tax and auto license tags and the manpower shortage will make it difficult to repair the heavy damage to roads, the engineer predicted.

Vigil of nearly five months was rewarded today when Detectives Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp captured a colored youth wanted for the robbery of Preston Scott, also colored, of Lily street. Late in October, Scott was en route home one night with most of his $70 paycheck in a hip pocket. He noticed a youth, apparently ill, lying on the sidewalk and recognized him as a former guest in his home. Hoisting the "sick" boy's frame over his shoulder he carried him to his home and after making him comfortable on a couch, left for a nearby store and medicine. On his return he discovered the quickly recovered youth and his purse were gone. The youth likely will be arraigned in municipal court tomorrow on the charge of robbery.

Spring's here, almost officially. C. L. Miller, our Steam Corners observer of seasonal changes, says so. In his annual report to The News-Journal today he submitted these sure signs of spring: he saw a frog flop off a creek bank, saw a killdeer flutter to a nearby fence, shot a groundhog, and found maple sap runing freely with his sugar camp having a busy season. C. L's almanacal ability has been proved over a period of yers—and everyone hopes he's right again this year.

HOPES TO KEEP COSTS IN CHECK

But OPA Chief Says There's Little Chance They Can Be Reduced.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Price Administrator Prentiss Brown believes there is little hope to reduce the cost of living but hopes to keep prices from rising more than one half of one per cent a month.

As compared to a 22 per cent rise in the cost of living in the United States since Sept. 1, 1939, when war began with the invasion of Poland, Brown contrasted the 210 per cent increase in prices in the first World war.

Although expressing the hope that the new meat pricing system would improve the marketing situation, Brown said he didn't think licensing of slaughterers alone would "do the job" but that price ceilings on live hogs probably would be necessary. He estimated that not more than two per cent of the nation's meat reached the black market.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The housewife's total of food ration points for April will be the same as it is in March—48 of them on the blue stamps lettered D, E and F in war ration book No. 2.

In making that announcement late yesterday, the Office of Price Administration also said there would be one week of overlap, during which both the March and April stamps will be good.

This month's stamps—the blue ones lettered A, B and C—will be good until March 31, and the new series will be available for canned goods from March 25 through April 30, OPA said.

Easter Vacation Cut To Dismiss Schools Earlier

Pupils in Mansfield public schools will have a short Easter vacation next month, but school will be out six days earlier in June to permit teachers and pupils to take war jobs for the summer.

The board of education last night approved a revised school calendar, reducing the Easter vacation to four days, so that classes may be dismissed June 4 instead of June 10 as originally scheduled. The schools in recent years have had nine and a half days vacation at Easter.

Under the new program, classes will be dismissed Thursday afternoon, April 22, and will be resumed the following Tuesday morning.

Baccalaureate services for the seniors will be moved up to Sunday, May 30, and commencement will be Friday, June 4.

The change was made at the request of Supt. W. L. Miller who said the earlier dismissal seemed logical in view of the war-time manpower emergency.

NURSERY PLAN FOR SCHOOLS MEETS DELAY

School Board Application To Be Held Up Until Plants Tell of Needs.

Filing of an application for federal funds to set up nursery schools in Mansfield for the children of war workers will be delayed while additional information to include in the request is obtained from industries, the board of education learned at its meeting last night.

Action to request federal aid for the project was taken at the February meeting of the board.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller said information pertaining to conditions of operation of the proposed nurseries, the necessity for the project, the number of mothers now employed in industries here, and the probable increase in the employment of women this year must be submitted to the federal government with the request for funds.

"We realize that these statistics are not readily available and that industries may have some difficulty in securing all the information," Supt. Miller said. "However, we are waiting until each industry has had sufficient time to make an effort to provide the information."

The schools have their part of the application ready to file, he said.

Under the board's plan, nursery schools for small children of mothers employed in war plants would be set up in convenient locations, freeing mothers' minds of worry about their children during working hours.

Citizenship classes under the board's sponsorship were started last week with Miss Hazel Zellner, Miss Martha Kindle and Virginia Norris as instructors.

Classes are conducted Tuesday evenings at the Bowman school and on Thursday evenings at Newman school. Unless the enrollment increases, it may be necessary to merge the classes, Supt. Miller said last night.

ILLNESS FATAL

Elson Heichel Taken By Death at Home; Rites Thursday.

Elson Heichel, 69, died early today at his home, 41 Chestnut street, after a brief illness.

Born in Ashland county, Mr. Heichel came to Mansfield at an early age, having resided here since that time. He was employed at the Tappan Stove company for the past 49 years. He had been a member of the First Lutheran church for the past 40 years.

His survivors include his widow, Catherine; one daughter, Mrs. Glenn Mowry, of Canton; one granddaughter, Mrs. Richard Darling, Mansfield; six brothers, A. G. Heichel and Ray Heichel, of Mansfield, Loin Heichel, of Springfield township, Jay Heichel, of Crestline, and Joseph Heichel, of Washington; one sister, Mrs. Nora Barr, of Mifflin; four half-brothers William, James and Harry Heichel of Mansfield, and Elmer Heichel of Kentucky, and one half-sister, Mrs. Clifford Wharton of Mansfield.

The body was taken to the Wappner Funeral home, where services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday with Rev. G. E. Swoyer in charge. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

TWO CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

Parents of Boy Find House In Flames on Return.

VANCOUVER, Wash.—(INS)—Two small children were dead today as result of a fire which late last night destroyed their home about six miles north of Vancouver.

The victims were identified as Alan Brown, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, and Diane Berger, 4, who was staying with the Brown family.

Authorities said Mr. and Mrs. Brown found the house in flames when they returned from a trip to the store.

Brown Plans To Put Businessmen In Key OPA Jobs

(Continued From Page 1) justified criticism, because it had relied too much on "crackdown psychology" instead of on the willingness of the public to cooperate. As a step to counteract this situation, Brown said he would announce soon the appointment of a "successful Detroit advertising executive" as head of OPA's information office.

Brown admitted that OPA had been hampered by an overly-complicated legal step-up, and to simplify it he said he would ask a "topflight" Detroit attorney to analyze functions of the legal staff and submit recommendations. Questioned about employment policies, he said OPA "has enough lawyers already."

While he hopes to reduce personnel and operating costs, he said it would be impossible to cut down personnel in the enforcement branch.

HOOVER OFFERS FOOD PROGRAM

Demands Agriculture Rank With Munitions in Talk to Midwest Meeting.

"We can find them in the local famines of meat or butter or potatoes or something else," Hoover declared. "We can find them in the epidemic of black markets reported from all over the country."

Declaring that strategy in total war is not solely a military question and that the home front is as important as the military front, Hoover explained:

"The home front of the greatest physical staying power, the greatest resources, the greatest will to endure and work will give the greatest strength to the military front. Wars can be won or lost on the home front.

"Our country is going strong on the military front. The magnificent ability, courage and devotion of our army and navy lift the spirit of every American. We have weaknesses on the home front . . . one of those weaknesses is in the food sector."

Hoover then drew a parallel between the collapse of starvi g countries in Europe during World war I and the "current degeneration of American agriculture." He said:

"Prior to the last war Russia was a surplus food country. She exported large quantities of food. They neglected the food production front. Two years later the Russian cities were pinched for food. Mobs roamed the streets howing 'give us bread,' and 'down with the czar.' The czar went down.

"Germany in 1914 produced about 85 per cent of her own food requirements, despite the blockade. Her war leaders were sure they could ration the population down 15 per cent. They neglected the food front. In three years Germany was dangerously short of food. In four years mobs were demanding bread and the emperor's head.

"We can easily explore the causes of food degeneration in those countries during the last total war. Too much manpower was drained from the farms in all those nations. Their leaders said women, children and inexperienced city people could serve on the farms. But that plan proved impractical."

Discussing the state of the nation's larder today, Hoover pointed out that the United States had ceased to become a food surplus nation before hostilities began.

The former president, however, stressed there is no cause for alarm provided we set about to remedy the situation quickly, and then offered his eight recommendations.

U. S. Faces Life Of Torture If Nazis Win War, Speaker Says

"One day I was driving in Bucharest and was stopped. I was told that I was to turn my car over to the German government. I asked if I might drive to the American embassy where I was staying. They agreed and we drove off. The moment we were on the American grounds, I told the Nazis they were now on neutral property and that they should leave. And, to my great surprise, they did."

The speaker told of his arrest by the Gestapo. He was charged with being a member of British Intelligence, and was taken to headquarters for questioning. He was questioned for three days before he was released.

"This was my first contact with the Gestapo, and although I was not harmed physically, was ridiculed and cursed as a 'stupid American.' One German officer wouldn't believe that I was an American citizen because I was actually born in Tokyo, Japan."

Brown managed to arrange transportation to Bulgaria. When he stepped off a train at Sofia, he was arrested by five German police and taken to Gestapo headquarters. He was tied up, beaten and subjected to other forms of torture for 45 minutes after he refused to agree with the German principle.

"While I was questioned by a German officer, I was asked if I was sympathetic to the American war policy. I said that I was. I was then asked if I had ever voted for 'this man Roosevelt, and when I said I had never voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the first time a smile came over his face. Of course, I didn't tell him that I had never been in the United States for an election."

After spending two weeks in Bulgaria, Brown was allowed to continue on to Portugal, where, after waiting three months, he managed transportation on an American bound ship.

The speaker came to Mansfield under the sponsorship of the Hermit club. Attorney Henry Huston was in charge of arrangements and introduced Mr. Brown.

Robert Miller led the Hi-Y clubs, guests of the Hermit club, in the pledge of allegience to the flag to open the program.

Four Allied planes were reported lost in the action, but the pilots of two were saved, said the noon bulletin. It added the raid caused "only slight damage and casualties."

It was the heaviest Japanese aerial stab in several months. Darwin was last raided March 2 by 15 fighters, six of which were reported shot out of action.

The Oro bay raid was on the wharf area just at dusk but the damage was slight and there were no casualties, General MacArthur's headquarters reported.

There was some speculation, meanwhile, over the whereabouts of the remains of the enemy convoy of eight ships which had been heavily attacked for two successive days straight as it approached Wewak, in northeastern New Guinea. Hits had been reported on four cargo ships and one destroyer, but B-17's which went out again in search of the convoy yesterday found no shipping whatever in that area, a headquarters spokesman said.

55 More Arrive At Airport For Flight Training

A new group of 55 trainees had arrived at the Mansfield airport today to begin eight weeks of flight instruction in preparation for navy flying.

Forty of the new men will receive their elementary training here and 15 are ready for secondary instruction, E. W. James, airport operations manager, said. Most of the trainees are from Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania and were assigned here by the Detroit office of the naval flight instruction department.

Following the preliminary training here, the men will go to Iowa City, Ia., for ground school instruction and physical education courses. After leaving the school there they will go to Pensacola, Fla., or Corpus Christi, Texas, advanced naval stations.

Record Job Over, Tax Collectors Sit Back For Rest

John L. Sullivan, assistant treasury secretary, in charge of enforcement said approximately all but 10,000,000 of the returns filed up to midnight last night would bring revenue to the nation. These figures are in comparison to the 17,363,000 individuals who paid $1,062,000,000 in 1942.

When income tax collectors complete the enormous task of examining all of the mail still piling up in collection offices, the treasury estimate may be altered, officials said. They were well pleased, however, with the response of the American people.

Sullivan estimated that the average tax per individual this year is $252.76. Sixty individuals will shell out $1,566,666.64 each, he revealed.

The treasury also said that the greatest number of taxable incomes are in the $1,000 to $2,000 class. The 17,363,000 individuals in this bracket will give Uncle Sam approximately $2,170,000 Sullivan said.

Since 1940, Sullivan added, delinquent taxpayers have dropped from 1.2 per cent to less than .3 of 1 per cent in 1942. The highest period of delinquency was during the depression years of 1932 and 1933 when 4.7 per cent of the taxes were uncollectable.

DIES AT AGE 80

Mrs. Mary Clark Had Lived In Mansfield 50 Years.

Mrs. Mary A. Fearer Clark, 80, resident of Mansfield for 50 years, died at her home last night following a lingering illness. She lived at 285 Reed street.

She was born in Ashland county June 12, 1862, and was a member of the Mayflower Congregational church.

One son, Eugene D. Clark, at home, survives.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 10:30 a. m., at the Finefrock funeral home, with Rev. C. A. Portz, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

GOVERNOR IS 'SCOOPED'

DENVER, Colo. — (UP) — Gov. John C. Vivian was "scooped" by the Montrose Daily Press on his appointment of H. Rodney Anderson of Montrose as state purchasing agent. The Press, quoting Anderson, revealed the Montrose man had accepted the state job before the governor got around to informing. Denver reporters the choice was official.

MINERS START NEGOTIATIONS

Name Subcommittee to Talk Pay Demands With Owners, Under Strike Threat.

(Continued From Page 1) "still bears in mind that the operators up to now have said that they are willing to examine our proposals only in the light of governmental limitations."

"Under the reasoning of Mr. O'Neill," Lewis continued, "the mine workers owe the operators money. Any offer the operators can make, they say, is limited by the dastardly formula of Mr. (William) Davis (chairman of WLB). If they intend to consume time and hope meanwhile for the government to chastise the mine workers, then this subcommittee will be as barren as this conference has been."

Named to the committee for the operators were, in addition to O'Neill, R. E. Jamison, R. L. Ireland, jr., W. N. Findlay, H. M. Moses, E. R. Price and Ezra Van Horn; for the miners, in addition to Lewis, James Mark, Frank Hughes, William Hynes, John P. Busarello, John Owens, John T. Jones and Thomas Kennedy.

Van Horn is chairman of the conference and Kennedy is secretary. Sessions of the subcommittee will be private.

Meanwhile, southern operators and UMW delegates also resumed their conference which also had been delayed by speeches of union representatives unanimous in the assertion that the miners will not return to work without a contract on April 1.

Lewis yesterday afternoon asserted that it would be "a safe assumption" that without a negotiated contract signed before April 1, "miners will not trespass" on the property of the operators.

O'Neill said Lewis himself had restricted the conference by demanding "an increase of $2 a day, no more, no less.' The operators, O'Neill continued, hoped the miners would join with them in submitting the proposals to a negotiating committee.

Mansfield News-Journal
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Revised version: A foolish woman and her ration stamps are soon parted.

The question, "When is a diplomat not a diplomat," might be answered by saying, "When he is not diplomatic."

It is Harry Wade, in the Detroit News, who suggests: "By reading good books and listening attentively to Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, we, too, can learn the English language."

American Legion Anniversary

MARCH marks the twenty-fourth anniversary month of the American Legion and tomorrow evening McVey post and auxiliary will hold a meeting and present a program commemorative of the founding of this great organization of Americans who served in the first World war.

It was in mid-March, 1919, only a few months after the Armistice was signed, that a group of representative service men met in Paris to form an organization designed to "carry on and perpetuate the ideals for which they had risked their lives, and for which their comrades had died."

From its early beginning, almost a quarter of a century ago, through the years of growth in numbers and prestige, the American Legion has been a stalwart force in the defense of American principles against alien influences and has stood four-square for national preparedness to meet any threat to the security of their country.

Had the preachments and practices of the American Legion, as related to subversive activities of alien agents and agitators, been adopted at national policy during the decade preceding United States entry into the present war, many of the weaknesses developed through such operations might have been escaped and nearer readiness attained for this inevitable conflict.

It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of Legionnaires have returned to the service of their country in this war, and that all who are physically able are enthusiastically doing some sort of civilian work associated with the national war program. Other hundreds of thousands of sons and daughters of Legionnaires are also in the service—sons of soldier dads being engaged on every battlefront to help finish the war which their fathers honestly believed had been ended in 1918.

Plans of the American Legion contemplate expanding that organization to include in its membership those younger men who are now fighting this new phase of the war for human freedom, and on this anniversary occasion it is as inspiring to look ahead to the vast field for future service by this group of patriotic Americans as it is to consider the fine contribution they have thus far made to their country and to the communities in which they live.

Providing the Sinews of War

THERE is soon to be another call to lend large sums of money to our government to be used in financing the war.

In every town and hamlet in every state in the union organizations are being perfected that will make it possible for every citizen to lend, not give, to his government the wherewithal to supply our fighting men all over the world the planes and guns and bullets and tanks they will need and must have to bring victory.

This campaign, to be launched early in April, will be known as the Second Victory Loan. In Richland county the organization will be headed by men well known and respected in their communities, who are giving of their time and effort so that this county will maintain its record of achievement.

Never in the history of the world have the citizens of a nation been given such an opportunity to assert their determination to preserve their freedom and at the same time invest their dollars in securities so safe.

The only difference between the hundred or thousand dollar bill you have in your pocket or safe deposit box and the hundred or thousand dollar bond you will be asked to buy is that the bond pays interest—both are obligations of the good old U. S. A.

Face to Face With the Gestapo

PEOPLE may become hardened to some of the stories of Axis atrocities that they read, or may even suspect there is an element of propaganda in them—quite confident, in any event, that "such things can't happen here."

Some of that confidence may be shaken, however, by Mansfielders who took advantage of yesterday's opportunity to hear James W. Brown, international Y. M. C. A. representative, tell of his own experiences with brutal members of the German gestapo in Bucharest, Rumania, while he was detained under suspicion of serving British interests after Rumania's entrance into the war on the side of the Axis.

Evident enjoyment by gestapo agents in watching the physical torture to which Mr. Brown was subjected during their efforts to secure admission of guilt, impressed him as revealing the barbaric qualities of the enemy and the impossibility of reaching any peace terms short of total annihilation of Nazi military power in Europe.

Those who heard Mr. Brown tell about the brutality that marked his own experience with the gestapo will be inclined to agree with his conclusion that "no price is too high to pay for assurance that such conditions will never be permitted to come about in this country, or in other parts of the world that have thus far escaped Axis domination."

When Propaganda Fails

PROPAGANDA is sometimes credited with achievements beyond its power. No one knows more about propaganda than Stalin, who told Walter Duranty, the newspaper correspondent: "Propaganda doesn't do anything. Constitutions and systems are changed by natural forces, not by talk or books."

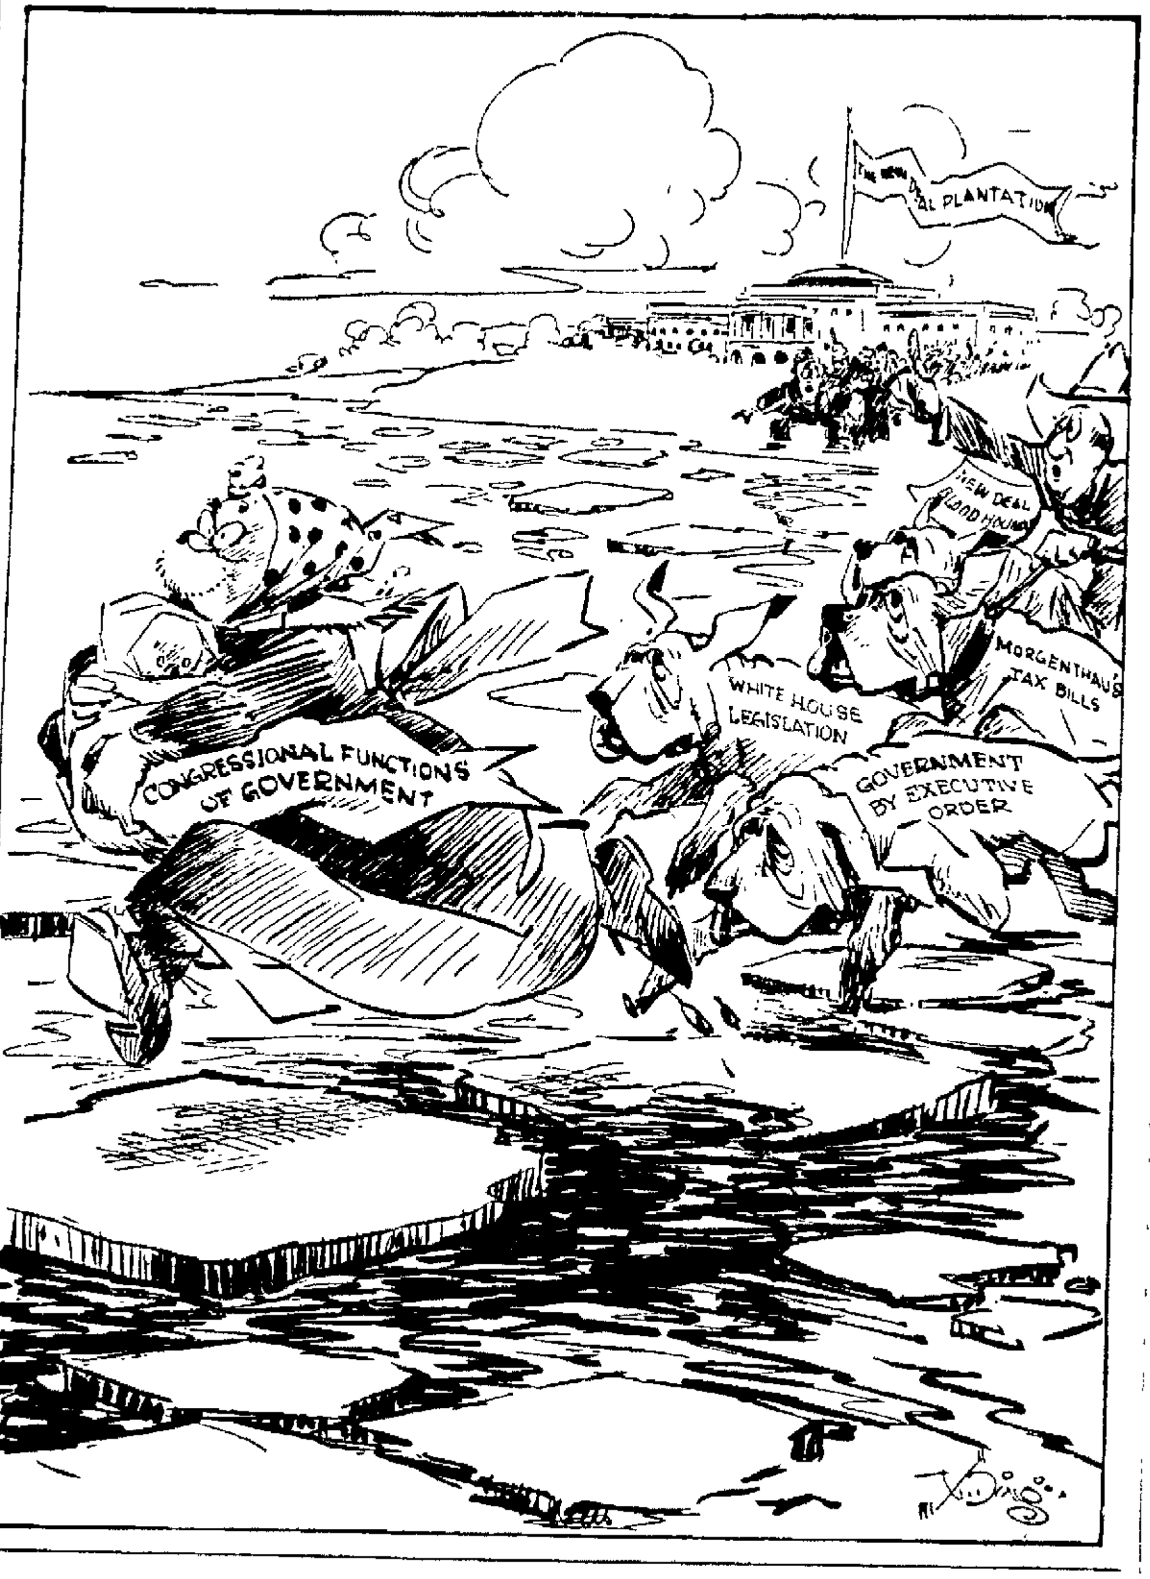
In other words, propaganda is something like germs. If the body is sound, the danger from the millions of germs that float around in the air need not be alarming.

Sure, Canada's a good neighbor. Whenever Washington is stumped for the solution of a new war problem, somebody goes up to Ottawa and learns what to do about it.

Statistical item: "The average American in a day strikes 9 1-1 matches"—and it's that fractional match that always seems to cause trouble.

Some of those post-war dreams seem to be based on the theory that it's perfectly proper for loafers to share what workers earn.

ELIZA'S FLIGHT TO FREEDOM



Prussians Uphold Hitler Regime

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

HITLER'S reported nervous collapse, whether it proves to be true or just another bit of wishful thinking about this arch-enemy of civilization, is a pointed reminder of one of the greatest of the Allied problems which now are occupying so much attention in Washington and London—the extermination of the cause of German militaristic aggression.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is in Washington, referred to this task of up-rooting at a press conference during the week-end. Said he:

"We must make sure that Germany and Japan are never able to start this business again. That is the fundamental job of our statesmanship."

Of course Japan must be sterilized as well as the reich, but the situation in both countries is basically similar, so let's devote this column to the Germans.

One's first reaction to the Hitler report is the gratifying hope that it's true and that he never recovers. The effect on the morale of his country undoubtedly would be devastating. Germany's whole war effort is built about his amazing leadership which, diabolical though it is, still represents one of the most powerful of history.

* * *

HAVING studied Hitler at close range in Germany, I believe he and Nazism are one and the same thing. He is the soul of this barbarism, and when he goes the dictatorship won't long survive.

We mustn't forget the fanatical young Nazis regard the fuehrer not only as their political chief but actually as a Messiah.

However we shall make a terrible mistake if we think we shall have eliminated German militarism when we have hanged him and his captains, or otherwise disposed of them.

German militarism was whelped in Prussia—and I mean Prussia. It has been the arrogant, swaggering, bullying cause of trouble ever since that kingdom emerged in 1763. Prussian militarists now, as for generations past, dominate the German military machine.

The Prussian chiefs, always looking for a chance to conquer the world, decided to profit by Hitler's amazing hold on the people of Germany.

So the militarists gave the abnormal-minded fuehrer their support. They are bound to stand by his waning fortunes until the last hope is dead—and then we are likely to see them take to cover.

But winning the war, and eliminating Hitler and Hitlerism, won't kill militarism in Germany or, more accurately, in Prussia.

The Prussian military leadership must be destroyed. How? Well, that's up to the Allied council, but the Prussian chiefs must in some way or other be taken out of circulation.

Then Germany—and Japan—will have to be occupied by Allied troops for many years, to give time a chance to rear a new generation that wants peace.

Here's What It Takes

HE IS A BIG BROTHER, who has already won his wings. He's been through the mill, found what counts and what doesn't.

But, stationed at another camp, there's a big brother—a cadet—who doesn't know the ropes yet. A kid who's strutting his stuff high, wide and handsome. But is inwardly bewildered. Wanting to be a Regular Guy—but not knowing what it takes.

And, back home, are two older men . . . executives in the firm where these youngsters once worked. For them there can be no wings. But their lives rotate about the dreams and struggles of these boys who are out to save the world for them.

One of them has sent me a letter which the older boys sent to the younger. I cannot tell you how it has moved me or how I think it should move all America. For once I had a boy who won his wings and went away, for keeps. And never more will I think that Youth is a shallow, flippant thing. So I'm going to print the letter that came to me just as it came.

Perhaps you haven't believed very deeply in American youth? Perhaps you've thought they were smart-alecky and soft. Then read this message to one whose young wings are set on the trail of death—but who sees only the glory of immortal life, as it should be lived by "an officer and a gentleman."

"Dear Kid:—

"As a lieutenant I want to give you all the advice, without preaching, but at the same time feel it is still better for you to analyze the problems as they come along. Besides, not set rule of procedure will hold for all- what helped me might harm you. Certain generalities might be of use.

"One. Always apply yourself diligently. Be eager. Most cadets look down on an eager comrade merely, however, because they have no guts, and are too lazy themselves. Don't be a good-goody—be regular, but still be eager, ready, willing and able to learn from and benefit by everything you come up against.

"Two. Be prepared for many disappointments. That will hold true as long as you're in the Army—well, in all life for that matter. But remember, there's always a silver lining. Look for something good and it will be there.

"Three. Start from the first to form good habits. Above all is this true when you get into flying. Good habits are the life insurance that gets you out of a tight spot, keeps the going smooth in general. That doesn't mean a strict pattern for your every breath!

"Four. Develop your integrity, which means character. This is the matrix around which all the parts which make up "success" is molded. Integrity means doing the right thing at all times, without hesitation. It means a clean life. It means unselfishness and selfishness, about which Dad talks so much.

"Five. Keep some room for religion and church in your daily life. It helps. Don't ask me why. An hour in chapel on Sundays, a few prayers daily, occasional Bible reading—after these I find it easy to breathe deeply, put my chest out and stride firmly forward.

"Bill, you know I wish you all the luck . . . The family must be lonely but they are brave—braver than we. Work hard, good luck, be good and be right."

There you have the gist of it, one boy talking to another out of their common breeding and blood.

BE EAGER . . . BE PREPARED FOR DISAPPOINTMENT . . . FORM GOOD HABITS WHICH WILL SUPPORT YOU, LIKE WINGS, WHEN THE CRISIS COMES . . . BE TOLERANT . . . DEVELOP CHARACTER . . . KEEP SOME ROOM FOR COMMUNION WITH GOD IN YOUR DAILY LIFE.

I know no finer code for any gentleman who braves the air.

God bless you, youngsters! America's pride—and God's great arms, support you!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

New GOP Congressmen at Soiree Are Thawed By Roosevelt Charm

WASHINGTON—The president's visit with freshmen senators and representatives was a rousing success from the standpoint of improving his shaky relations with congress. The 117 new members, most of them Republicans, left the White House after partaking of beer, cheese, crackers and a double helping of Roosevelt charm.

To a man, they sang his praises, and most of the singing was done by Republicans who had blasted the president and his administration up hill and down dale in the last campaign.

Roosevelt entertained his guests with a variety of conversational topics, ranging from a serious discussion on the progress of the war and his trip to Africa to light banter on congressional "word-coining" and "pleasure driving."

So they could get to know him better, Speaker Rayburn took turns in assembling the congressional visitors before the president in the separate groups of about 40 each. This enabled everyone to hear him at close range, without neck-craning. Meanwhile the others munched crackers and drank beer in other parts of the room.

And right here let it be noted that, though the president paid special attention to Republican Representative Winifred C. Stanley of New York—which some construed as a slap at her more publicized GOP colleague, Clare Luce of Connecticut—he by no means ignored the latter.

* * *

Kidding Clare Luce.

THE president had a special quip for the glamorous Claire, apropos of her anti-administration speech on post-war aviation. While she was listening, he told the group that he was tired of hearing the war with Japan described as a war of "attrition."

He explained that with more and more tons of Jap shipping destroyed, or airplanes shot down, victory over Japan is that much closer, since our production facilities are much greater than Japan's.

"The word the experts have for this is attrition," he added. "But it is not a good word. Many people do not understand what it means. Someone ought to think up a new word."

With a mischievous grin at Mrs. Luce, the president added gayly:, "That's a job for you new members of congress. Some of you are very good at thinking up new words."

Vice President Wallace, who was present and whose post-war views were described by the Connecticut congresswoman as "globoloney," joined in the laughter.

While on the subject of words, the president made a confession. Perhaps he had heard the complaint of Democratic national committee members who said he had not let them talk. Anyway he said:

"Some people claim I do all the talking on occasions like this. That may be true. I must admit I do a lot of talking. I like to talk. But if I'm carrying it too far tonight, I want you to stop me."

No one tried to stop the president, however, for all those present seemed to be enjoying the show immensely. There were more laughs when the president shook hands with Representative Charles E. McKenzie and James H. Morrison, both of Louisiana delegation which has threatened a sit-down strike against him unless they get a Huey Long judge appointed to the Fifth circuit court of appeals.

"I'm glad to meet you," he told the Louisianans. Then he added with an audible aside: "Don't make this your last visit. Slip through the backdoor sometime soon."

* * *

Tribute to Will Rogers.

THE PRESIDENT spoke touchingly to Representative Will Rogers of California about his father, the famous humorist.

"An admirer of your father sent me a statue of him, which I keep in my Hyde Park home. I wish you would come up to see it sometime."

There were special words for many more of the guests, including Republican Representative Calvin Johnson of Illinois. As he shook hands with Roosevelt, Johnson remarked: "I don't belong to your party, but I guess I'll find myself voting for you even at times when I may not wholly agree with you. You see, I have three sons in the service."

"That's fine," beamed the president, "but I'm one up on you. I have four boys in the service."

"Well, you're older than I," countered Johnson.

The president inquired about each of Johnson's sons, was especially interested to learn that one, Lieut. John B. ("Barney") Johnson, was with the army air corps at Randolph Field.

"I was talking to General 'Hap' Arnold recently and told him we would have many thousands of new planes ready for service this year," the president said. "I asked him if he would have the pilots trained to fly them. General Arnold assured me he would. So, one of the planes will be for that boy of yours, Congressman."

Discussing wartime transportation problems, Johnson revealed that he had driven to Washington from Illinois in his automobile.

"That was before the pleasure driving ban, Mr. President," grinned Johnson, "but I feel a little guilty anyhow, using up all that gasoline."

The president cocked his cigaret holder at a jaunty angle, winked impishly at Johnson.

"That's Congress for you," he said. "Pleasure driving!"

Note: The effect of the president's congressional reception was felt the next day when Representative O'Konski, Wisconsin Republican, made a vigorous speech championing Roosevelt's $25,000 salary limitation and opposing conservative Democrats who tried to overthrow it.

Arab Youngsters Learn Key Words; Queer Incidents Relieve Monotony.

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA—The Arab kids that swarm the roads around the army camps and nearby villages are a friendly bunch.

It takes them only a few hours to learn the world-wide habit of begging from Americans. I'll bet our soldiers aren't two days in a new place until every kid in town is able to say in English "chewing gum, chocolate, cigaret, good-day, okay." They pester you to death for these tid-bits, and the soldiers keep giving them away as long as they have any.

The Arab kids seem to have more sense than the pestering child-natives of many countries. Instead of being dumb and surly, they have a nice spark of life about them. If you say you have no chewing gum and smile at them, they'll smile back and then stand around good-naturedly just smiling at you.

Their favorite word is "okay." Even some of the grown-ups have adopted it. They yell it at every passing American. You can't walk down the road nowadays without being walled in by a surging melody of hundreds of "okays" coming at you from all sides.

Once in a while you see a light-skinned, clean-gowned almost sheik-like Arab. But mostly their clothes are unwashed, and their long gowns an unbelievable mass of patches.

* *

AT FIRST the Arabs were allowed to roam the airdromes, and they helped the crews fill the planes' big tanks from the countless five gallon tins.

There are quite a few carriages for hire in the desert towns and soldiers take rides in lieu of anything better to do. If I were an Arab, I know how I'd make a small fortune.

I'd get about 10 camels, and rent them out to soldiers to take rides on. I'd also get a camera and take pictures of soldiers on camelback, and sell them for 100 francs apiece. Apparently no Arab has thought of it, but somebody is just passing up an opportunity of making about 10,000 bucks awfully easily.

The horse carriages are fancy. The driver sits on a high box up front and is often dressed in bright clothes. One of these carriages the other evening provided the funniest sight I've seen since leaving America.

It was just before dusk, and the air-raid signal swept across our airdrome by dinnerbell and rifle-shot. I was standing way out on the field, when suddenly there came dashing out from behind the palm trees one of these Arab carriages.

The driver had brought some soldiers to the field, had heard the alarm and being touchy about raids, as Arabs are, had decided to get the hell out of there in a hurry.

He was standing up in his box, coat-tails flying, whipping his horses for all he was worth. The team was in a dead run. The buggy was bouncing and swaying over the rough desert trail. The horses were going so hard their bodies were stretched out, their flying feet almost level with their noses, and one was a little ahead of the other, just as on the track.

With the carriage's red wheels and the driver's red coat for color, the scene looked exactly like a Courier & Ives print. The poor, frightened man's pathetic hurry was so comical we all stopped and laughed till he was out of sight, still going like mad.

* * *

QUEER little incidents happen in war. Mechanics on the Flying Fortresses kept discovering empty machine-gun shells in the engine nacalles. Where they came from was a mystery.

Finally it dawned on somebody. Planes were dumping the empties in midair after shooting them, and they were being carried back by the slipstream, right through the propellers of the following planes, and lodging in the nacelles. You'd think it would damage the propellers, but apparently it doesn't.

And speaking of freaks, a Fortress gunner came home the other day with the corner of his pants pocket torn apparently by a piece of flak, although it must have been fairly spent for he didn't know when it hit. Later he put his hand in his pocket and discovered the metal fragment nestled there right in his pocket.

* * *

PRACTICALLY all of our soldiers in North Africa have slept on the ground ever since they got here. The other day I overheard one boy tell about going to Algiers on leave, and sleeping all night in a hotel bed.

"I woke up at 3 o'clock in the morning with a splitting headache, just because the damn bed was so soft," he said, "and I never did get back to sleep."

Timely Editorial

The Last Man to Die.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, in his address at Indianapolis, recalled the fact that men were killed on Nov. 11, 1918 after 11 a. m.—killed because news of the armistice had not yet reached them.

"This is the price of war," Captain Rickenbacker went on, "a given number of men killed every hour and every day that war continues."

We, on the home front, have the power to save the lives of American boys by doing all we can to shorten the duration of the conflict. If we fail to produce, fail to do our share in the entire war effort, the casualty lists of those extra days of battle must be charged to our failure.

Who will be the last man killed in this war? It may be a son, a husband or a brother. It may be YOU!—Akron Beacon-Journal.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Resolved That—"

An intriguing word is "resolve." Stemming from the Latin resolvere meaning "to untie," it came to take on a variety of senses, different shades of figurative significance.

Hence to resolve became to separate, to reduce to simplicity, to clear up, to free from doubt, to disentangle, to solve.

By the same development, it is now to compress as well as express the meat of a long argument or discussion, even a philosophy of government or democracy, by a declaration of a determination of the representatives of the people.

As was done recently by some members of the House who out of a fog of talk:

"Resolved that our national peril must not be exploited by any individual or group for special gains or advancement."

Dave Boone Says:

WELL, the first payment on the tax-nobody-can-understand, has been paid to the government-that-can't-make-up-its-mind by such of us as could make head or tail of the tax situation to date.

* * *

But a lot of new taxpayers are holding out on the ground that if congress is entitled to be too muddled for a definite action, so are they.

* * *

Day before yesterday was the first Sunday in Lent and I guess rarely have the churches been so crowded. Self-denial these days isn't just a Lenten matter. The deeper meanings of the season are better understood than for a long time, I figure, and to millions, the Way of the Cross seems more personal.

* * *

"The Lord will overshadow thee with His shoulders, and under His wings thou shalt trust: His truth shall compass thee with a shield." This was a familiar quotation from the psalms Sunday. In those words we've got to find the faith needed to carry the world back to peace and order.

* * *

Despite all the shields the war plants are turning out, there is none that's needed more than this one.

Had Evelyn refused to flatter d cajole and follow Thelma? had Evelyn's air of bored su- iority been so much greater in Thelma's that the latter was ious because she could not sur- s it? Freda thought, smoking vously, "Ian sits over there wing on a cigar, looking as ocent as a babe. But he'll w the answers to all the ngs I'm fussing about in my id. She was relieved when Tom in- ed that she and Ian remain for cheon partly because the situ- on between Evelyn and Thel- interested her so she could bear to leave and partly be- ise she would not have to eat again. One thing was certain, thought. Thelma resented lyn's cool-possession and poise. eda wondered why it hadn't oc- red to Thelma that Evelyn s a silent person because she s an inarticulate person. That s putting it politely, she ught.

he plain truth of the matter s that Evelyn was superbly ely, superbly lazy and also a erbly stupid female, and Thel- keen, ambitious, aggressive, epted the indolence and stu- ity as an affront and snob- y. It was wonderful to watch m, to listen to Thelma's ac- nt of gay times on Long Is- d, knowing how it infuriated that Evelyn was scarcely f-listening.

reda was sweetly stupid. "Oh, you were all together, you Bill, Thelma and Tom."

No," Evelyn said pleasantly. e were not together. I don't eve I know Thelma's friends e."

urning quickly to see Thelma's ction, Freda saw the color rise eath the sunburn. She ught, "Thelma is gritting her h. She's burning up. Evelyn just told me, after Thelma been trying to impress me, Thelma's friends don't meas- up socially to the friends of lyn's sister. Oh this is won- ful! Sick! I'm glad Carol isn't coming tonight. What awful mess Bill has made of it! If only emotions were things you could spank and put back in place when they get out of hand."

"He'll never get rid of Evelyn."

Freda was silent. Then she said slowly, "Maybe the worst of it will be his wanting to get rid of Evelyn and not being able to . . . We still like Bill, don't we?"

* * *

The Yacht club dance was everything its members and guests had anticipated. There were sufficient new faces to stimulate interest and sufficient familiar ones to make you feel at home. Flirtations abounded and young men who had been away for the summer secretly admitted that their own, home-grown femininity was hard to beat. There would be, before the evening was over, the annual near-drowning of the noisiest inebriate, the fight in the bar over a blond and the taking of a taxi home by an irate wife. The Yacht club dance usually provided Clinton gossips with enough materials to last until the New Year's eve celebration. This year was no exception.

Freda and Ian joined Tom Purnell's large party and once more Freda felt the one-sided feud between the two wives. It was also as if they had tried to surpass each other in the smartness of their clothes. Reluctantly Freda admitted that Evelyn, wearing white lace, won the contest hands down. The always vivid Thelma even in crimson chiffon with her dark curls gleaming seemed to sit in the shadows and seemed to know that she sat in the shadows.

Several young men had danced with Evelyn, and Freda had not been danced with for years by young men wanting to be respectful not to recognize that Thelma was receiving the same treatment tonight. But Evelyn, extremely pleasant and gracious as she left the table and returned to it, seemed happily unaware of her hostess' hostility.

Eventually the moment came for Freda to dance with Bill. And as they danced they said what Freda had known they would say—that the dance was a great success, that old Mr. Lane who handled it certainly handled it well, that the sprinkling of uniforms added color and dignity and that a drink at the bar was certainly preferable to being stepped on by the younger generation not content with straight dancing.

The bar was so crowded and noisy that Bill asked, " Shall we take our drinks and go out, Freda?"

"Let's do. This is a madhouse."

The night was clear and warm as they walked down the steps to the pier.

Bill asked, "Did little Ian go to camp this summer?"

'Yes. He'll be home next week. I'm going up for him and I promised him we'd fly back. He's terribly thrilled about that."

"I suppose he's grown a lot."

"Like a weed and he's about as skinny as a weed. He's too active to keep any flesh on him."

"He's a fine boy."

Bill had always romped with little Ian, and to the boy Bill was a hero. He had once told Freda, "When I grow up, I want shoulders like Bill's."

Freda said, "One of his greatest ambitions is to grow as big as you."

Bill chuckled and they walked on a little way before he spoke again.

"Freda, how is Carol?"

Her heart gave a little perk. "She's fine. Perfectly fine."

"I never hear anything about her," he said. His voice was low and he kept his eyes ahead. "People never mention her to me. I suppose . . . it embarrasses them."

"Naturally. They also know that it would embarrass you."

"It seems queer that we live in the same town and never run into each other."

"It happened last spring with pretty painful results. . . . If you remember." She thought, "I won't say too much" even I have to bit my tongue."

"Yes, I remember. It was . . . ghastly. It was my fault. I didn't think. . . ."

Freda said, "She's working. Since June she's been doing volunteer social work at the General hospital and loves it. She isn't taking anybody else's job, but rather lightening the work of the other people there. She does a little bit of everything, typing, making appointments, filing the case histories. She's met a lot of new people, doctors and their wives, and the reason she isn't here tonight is because she was invited away for the week-end by some of the hospital people."

"I see," Bill said slowly. "I thought she and Scott."

"That still goes on," Freda said. "He's crazy about her, but it happens that several other men are, too. There's a millionaire in Detroit who'd marry her in a minute and there's a perfectly fascinating man she met on a cruise.

"There's nothing like freedom to make a woman realize her attractions, if any. Husbands are so apt to be aware of your good points, but prefer to call attention to your bad ones. Carol has lost the married look that most women have. It's that look of contentment and knowing where you are going to be this time next year."

"I see," he said again. "I'm glad she's making out so well. I'm glad she's—happy."

RESERVATION PLAN CANCELLED FOR CITY PARKS NEXT SUMMER

It may seem a little early to talk about such things but Mansfield's park commission has voted to discontinue the practice of reserving open-air picnic tables, furnaces and other outdoor equipment during the approaching season at Mansfield's park.

Areas will be available for reservation by established large groups, according to Frank Burton, parks superintendent, and pavilions and ground-floor picnic and assembly facilities will be open to reservation, as usual.

"Bitter experiences have been recorded," Burton explained, "when, after reserving a table or two and a furnace for some small group that group would be tardy. Meanwhile others would arrive and claim use of the equipment, ignoring any reservation sign. 'We're taxpayers, too, and entitled to it,' would be their defense. Abandonment of the reservation plan seems to be the equitable method of preventing two parties from becoming angered."

Burton and Clarence Silcott, assistant city engineer, are planning a survey of John Todd park, accepted by council last summer, with a view of plotting a beautification and preservation program. Underbrush has been removed in the 26-acre tract. A roadway will be constructed as soon as weather permits.

Addition picnic facilities will be installed in South and Middle parks, under present plans of the park commission, and considerable painting will be done at all recreational centers. Tennis courts and baseball diamonds will receive greater attention this spring, Burton said.

One of the problems will be obtaining sufficient labor, the superintendent explained, the city's 60-cent hourly scale not being attractive to men able to earn more in war plants.

"It is possible," Burton declared, "that some of the spring plans will have to be deferred until the advanced 'teen-age boys in school become available."

Burton also would like to cut out deadwood in Central park but since this beauty spot comes under the jurisdiction of Service-Safety Director Wolff special permission will be necessary. It has been indicated that council might be asked to change the status of the downtown park to include it in the park commission jurisdiction.

COAL TRAIN: Before the war, I was busy enough, but now, whew! Why, every week, just to New England alone, I have to carry sixty-two hundred cars of coal that used to go by water.

OIL TRAIN: How's that?

COAL TRAIN: Submarines!

OIL TRAIN: Submarines gave me a job, too! Before Pearl Harbor, tankers carried 95% of the gas and oil to the East. I carried only about twelve thousand barrels daily.

COAL TRAIN: And now you haul eight hundred thousand!

OIL TRAIN: Yep! They said I couldn't do it, but I am! What's more, now that they have started carrying oil in converted box cars, I expect to do nine hundred thousand daily.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

MRS. CLAUDE EWING PRESENTS MUSICIANS

Mrs. H. H. Clingan Entertains Central Methodist Guild; Richard, Eugene Griesbach, Gloria Morton and Mrs. C. E. Reese Assist.

MRS. CLAUDE EWING, choir leader at the Central Methodist church, and well known in Mansfield for her yearly leadership of Handel's "Messiah," had charge of the program, Monday afternoon of the Central Methodist Guild. Mrs. Ewing presented some of Mansfield's leading musicians.

Mrs. N. C. Yarger assisted Mrs. Ewing in the program which was presented in the home of Mrs. H. H. Clingan, 208 Vennum avenue, who is an organist and choir leader at the Christian church, and a teacher of piano.

Presented by Mrs. Ewing were, Richard and Eugene Griesbach, violinists, and Carol Ann Spencer, accompanist, who played "Three Little Symphonies" by Dancla; Gloria Morton, who favored the group with a piano solo, "Scarf Dance," by Chaminade, and Mrs. S. E. Reese, soprano, who, accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Clingan, sang "The Day Is Mine" by Harriet Ware and "I Will Lay Me Down In Peace" by D. Buck.

Roll call at the meeting was answered by famous sayings about music. Mrs. N. C. Yarger played one line from each of twenty-five hymns and each one tried to name the hymn. This contest was won by Mrs. Roy Winters.

Mrs. R. L. Foulke discussed the introduction of Christianity into Russia. She stated that President Roosevelt has asked that there be religious freedom in Russia, but Russia does not grant her people freedom of assembly for worship and her citizens are not free to instruct the children and youth in religion. However many Russians hope religious freedom, as enjoyed in America, will be their privilege as an outcome of this war.

Mrs. John Roman and Mrs. R. L. Foulke presided at a table, candlelighted with tall white candles, and centered with green and white flowers. St. Patrick refreshments were served to twenty-five members and two guests. Mrs. Herman Brunk and Mrs. C. E. Reese. Mrs. Frank Breckenridge, Mrs. R. R. Martin, Mrs. M. R. Guiher, and Mrs. E. E. Weaver assisted the hostess, Mrs. Clingan.

144,000 Eggs SCRAMBLED

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — The greatest dish of scrambled eggs ever recorded in California occurred here when a heavy truck and trailer laden with eggs skidded and overturned. The load comprised 400 cases of eggs, making a total of 144,000 eggs that went into the scramble.

The first use of the direct primary in the United States, it is believed, was in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1868.

GALION SOLDIER MISSING ON AFRICAN FRONT, PARENTS TOLD

GALION —Another Galion man reported missing in action in the North African war area is Cleaman J. Neuman, private first class, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Neuman, 370 Grove avenue.

The parents were notified by the war department in Washington in a telegram signed by Major-Gen. James A. Ulio, adjutant general of the U. S. army.

Pfc. Neuman had been in the army for over two years, and was inducted from Elyria where he was employed. He was sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., March 5, 1941.

Born at Sugar Grove, Lake, March 30, 1919, he lived in Galion until he was 13 years old when the family moved to Bucyrus. He was graduated from Bucyrus high school in 1937.

He was a member of the infantry and in recent weeks was assigned to a mortar unit. His last letter to his sister, Marcine, of Galion, was written Feb. 13.

The family moved to Galion from Bucyrus last April. A grandfather, Sanford Kurkhart, also lives here.

Following his induction into the army, Pfc. Neuman trained at Camp Wolters, Texas, and other camps. He was stationed at Fort Devens, Mass., with the first division, and went overseas early last August, and then to North Africa, with the American invasion fleet, last November.

The family expresses the hope that he was taken prisoner in the Axis drive in Central Tunisia last month at which time a large number of American soldiers and supplies were captured.

Navy Mothers Welcome Member At Monday Meet

Mrs. Lenna Green was welcomed into the Navy Mothers' club Monday evening when the club met for a regular meeting at the Central Methodist church, at which Maynard Balliett, a sailor on leave, told interesting facts about navy life.

The group has made plans to attend a meeting of the newly-organized Navy Mothers' club in Shelby, which is to be held Tuesday, March 23. Members are urged to attend, and those interested, who do not know the whereabouts of the meeting are asked to call Mrs. Kathryn Sattler for details.

An invitation to the Christian church for a special service for service men, to be held Sunday, March 21, has been accepted.

The club is still making lap robes and comfort kits for wounded sailors in the hospital at Oakland, Calif. Many were turned in at last night's meeting.

The next meeting scheduled for the Navy Mothers' club is Monday, April 5. That meeting will be held at the church.

Fete Miss Turner With Breakfast

Another in the series of prenuptial parties planned for Miss Aileen Turner, the bride-elect of Charles Burton, was given Sunday morning in the form of a breakfast at Paulson's restaurant.

Hostesses at the affair were Miss Carol Chapin and Miss Mary Brooker. Guests were seated at a long table appropriately decorated. Favors were miniature brides and sailors.

After the breakfast, the morning was spent socially. Miss Turner received many lovely gifts of crystal.

Monday Study Club Has Meeting With Mrs. Carlton Fernyak; Forty-Two Members Attend Guest Meeting.

MRS. CARLTON FERNYAK entertained members and guests of the Monday Study club Monday night at her home, on Park avenue west, when Mrs. Loren E. Beck, active in the Little Theater in Galion, gave an interesting review of Sgt. Thornton Wilder's play, "The Skin of Our Teeth." Mrs. Fernyak was assisted by Mrs. Lloyd Downs.

Roll call was answered by members introducing their guests. Twenty members and twenty-two guests were in attendance.

The nominating committee, comprised of Mrs. William Bloor, Mrs. C. H. Bell and Mrs. S. C. Theaker, presented its slate of officers for the coming year. These will be voted upon at the next meeting.

In Mrs. Beck's report of Sgt. Wilder's play, which opened last November in New York, she stated that no play has caused so many favorable and unfavorable comments as this one. Dramatic critics declare it the "wackiest" play ever witnessed, and audiences proclaim it the craziest, yet others insist it is excellent.

Mrs. Beck personally feels the play to be a "funny and crazy 'slapstick' comedy, having an undercurrent of good common sense." Sgt. Wilder always writes unusual plays and this one runs true to form. The playwright describes his play as a comedy. It is a story of a family and shows how the unity of family life sees them through adversities. There are many amusing incidents and most unexpected happenings which occur to excite one's interest.

Sgt. Wilder is now in the intelligence service of the United States air force in Washington, D. C.

When refreshments were served Mrs. George Gaalaas and Mrs. Paul Weir presided at the table. Spring flowers were used as the centerpiece. The next meeting, March 29, will be at the home of Mrs. M. K. Leggett with Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh assisting.

HAVE DINNER PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stentz, 806 Lexington avenue, entertained the immediate family at a dinner party in honor of Richard Theaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Theaker, who is leaving in the near future for the armed forces. The affair also honored the engagement of Miss Betty Pearce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Pearce to Mr. Theaker, which was recently announced. The couple was presented with gifts. Table appointments were in keeping with the spring season.

November Bride

Shown above is Mrs. Robert M. Saltzgaber, who before her marriage in November was Miss Marjorie Anne Urich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Urich, 182 Western avenue. Mr. Saltzgaber, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Saltzgaber, is an employe of the Ideal Electric company. Mr. and Mrs. Saltzgaber will make their home at 224 Chilton avenue.
